Pair Arrested After One Shot Fired As Police Chase Stolen Machine

M. Parly and F. Rutherford Charged With Car Theft After Apprehension at 4 o'clock This Morning; Pursuit By Prowler Car Ends at Herald and Douglas Streets; Young Woman in Car Questioned

After a chase at breakneck speed through the heart of the city, in which one shot was fired, police arrested two young men early this morning on a charge of car theft, and detained a young woman who was in their company.

The pair arrested were Marshall Parly, Victoria, and Fenwick Rutherford of Nanaimo.

Appearing before Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court this morning they pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing a car owned by A. H. Clarke, 1864 Amphion Street, and were remanded to to-morrow for hearing.

Constables George Claydards and Lewis Parr arrested the pair at 4:15 o'clock this morning and recovered Mr. Clarke's car after it had been missing about seven hours.

The two constables were on duty in a prowler car at the corner of Hillside and Douglas Streets when they spotted a machine answering the description of the stolen vehicle, which had been reported taken from outside the Capitol Theatre between 7 and 9 o'clock yesterday evening.

SPED ALONG THOROUGHFARE
Giving chase to the car, the officers were forced to limit the police machine's speed along Douglas Street toward the centre of town. They sounded the siren but the fleeing car did not stop. As they drew abreast it swerved in front of them and Constable Claydards did some smart driving to avert a crash.

Finally the pursuing police overhauled the other machine near Herald Street and were about to run it into the curb when a figure leaped from the car and ran east along Herald Street. Constable Parr jumped from the moving police car and took after the fleeing man. Meanwhile, Constable Claydards had drawn up alongside the other machine.

SHOT FIRED
Constable Parr pursued the man running up Herald Street for two blocks, firing one shot as a warning and overtook him at Blenheim Street. It was Parly.

Rutherford, with the young woman, were taken into custody by Constables Claydards and Parr who were taken to police headquarters.

After they pleaded not guilty to the charge of car theft, Chief of Police Henney suggested a remand be granted so they could secure counsel.

"It's no good us getting counsel when we can't afford it," Parly said. The remand was ordered, however.

Ottawa Government Accepts Sum Offered at Four Per Cent For Two Years

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The Canadian Government this week borrowed $35,000,000 from the banks for two years at 4 per cent interest. It was an ordinary business transaction and had nothing to do with the exchange rates, according to officials.

The government was offered the money and as the rate was lower than that of the bonds now on sale, it was considered a good stroke of business to accept it.

Reports from Montreal indicated this borrowing had been a success. The view in some quarters that "deflation" of currency was planned. The information given out here was that it was entirely a routine transaction and had nothing to do with any currency policy on the part of the government.

TAX PAYMENTS ARE $1,549,000

Eighty Per Cent Mark Passed As Collections at City Hall Continue

Arrears Payments Show Advance Over Last Year Despite Change in Sale Dates

Current tax collections at the City Hall went over the 80 per cent mark by the end of October, and collection of arrears maintained a figure higher than last year, according to a statement released by D. A. Macdonald, City Comptroller, this morning.

The total collection of current taxes amounted to $1,549,000 at October 31, which is approximately 80.1 per cent of the levy of $1,935,000. With two months of the year remaining, payment of an additional 5 per cent is necessary to reach the estimated collection.

Payment of tax arrears to the end of the month reached a figure of $159,867, as against $154,080 at the same date last year. However, these figures do not show the real comparison since the tax sale was held on November 1 last year and the payments of two-year-old arrears were heavy on the last few days of the month. This year the largest collection of two-year-old arrears will come this week, the tax sale being on Nov. 10.

The situation is shown in the following figures of payments at October 31: 1932—One-year-old accounts, $73,906; two-year-old, $51,962; fifteen-year-old, $5,028.

1931—One-year-old accounts, $73,906; two-year-old, $50,277; fifteen-year-old, $12,746.

It will be seen that the payment of two-year arrears is lower this year, but the other figures show a substantial increase. In addition to these amounts the total arrears collection also included such items as interest on consolidated arrears, general arrears, local improvements, tax penalties, and so forth.

The estimated collection of arrears for 1932 is $215,650, so the total to October 31 is about $355,000 short.

WAY OPEN TO ALTER TARIFF

Future British Parliaments Not Bound By Passage of Canada Trade Pact

Canadian Press
London, Nov. 3.—The Commons proceeded to-day with debate on the Ottawa Agreement Bill, assuring its passage would not pledge the country irrevocably to carry out the provisions of the pact for the next five years.

Impossibility of tying the United Kingdom to tariff stipulations of the pact was admitted when Leslie Hore-Belisha, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, told the House that at any time "this act of Parliament can be repealed by another Parliament." This means the way will be open for any future British Parliament to vary customs duties at any time it may see fit.

The debate arose during committee of clause 11 of the bill, which provides that the pact shall be in force for five years from the date of its signature.

LIABILITY FOR DEER ARGUED
Sooke Resident Fights Charge Under Game Act For Killing Animal at Turnip Patch

The question of what involves a proper report to the game branch and the status of a farmer, were raised in Provincial Police Court yesterday afternoon. Anthony Kohout of Sooke, was charged with shooting a deer without a license.

Evidence was given that Mr. Kohout shot the deer which was eating the turnips in his turnip patch on September 30. When a game warden came round next day he told him about it, but did not make a written report of the occurrence, as provided by the section of the Game Act covering a farmer's right to shoot game, until some weeks later, when he reported in writing to the provincial game commissioner.

R. S. Yates, defence counsel, argued that Mr. Kohout, being a farmer, had complied properly with the law, having reported verbally to the game warden and in writing to the game commissioner.

The prosecution held that Mr. Kohout, as proprietor of the Sooke Harbor House, required a permit to take deer, and was subject to penalty. The magistrate reserved judgment for a week.

Mr. Kohout was also charged with refusing to allow search of his premises by game warden, and was fined $10 and $2 costs on this count.

Boy Is Taken Home After Wandering Far

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 3.—The adventuresome world tour of fourteen-year-old Ross N. McDiarmid came to a happy conclusion to-day in the arms of his father, Hon. John S. McDiarmid, Minister of Mines and Natural Resources of Manitoba.

Young McDiarmid, who ran away from his home in Winnipeg twelve days ago to "tour the States" and sell the sea, may have had some anxious moments while he awaited the arrival of his father, but it turned out to be a great reunion.

"We're just a couple of pals," said the elder McDiarmid, as he fondled the boy and brushed his hair so he would look his best for newspaper photographers.

Ross was brought to a hotel from his home in Winnipeg twelve days ago, where he was found by two policemen yesterday after he had been missing for some time.

The elder McDiarmid made it plain his chief concern was that his son get a much-needed haircut and clean clothes.

Manitoba Mayor Says Report Jobless Shipped East In Hundreds Untrue

Montreal Council Tells Minister of Labor at Ottawa Whole Carloads of Unemployed Shipped to St. Lawrence City From Manitoba Capital

Canadian Press
Montreal, Nov. 3.—The Montreal Star to-day said:

"Mayor Fernand Rinfret, who is member of Parliament for the St. James Division, has been asked by the city to make a formal interpellation to the Minister of Labor and register a protest in the name of the city against the action of the city of Winnipeg in shipping whole carloads of unemployed to Montreal."

Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—The shoe is on the other foot, stated Mayor Ralph H. Webb of Winnipeg to-day when shown a dispatch from Montreal reporting a proposed protest by the city of Montreal against alleged action of Winnipeg in shipping whole carloads of unemployed to Montreal. "From 30,000 to 40,000 men from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces came west to find harvest work during the summer, and the majority of them are still in the west."

Editorial Scoring Bennett Is Read To Commons Members

Donnelly, Saskatchewan Liberal, Reminds Conservatives One of Them Told About $750,000 Bennett Donated

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Nov. 3.—Fireworks flew for a few minutes in the Commons yesterday evening when Dr. T. F. Donnelly, Liberal, Willow Bunch, Sask., read to the members an editorial from The Vancouver Sun.

The member for Willow Bunch was nearing the end of his speech on the Imperial Conference agreements. He mentioned some of the Conservative members had "referred to the 'Valley of Humiliation.'"

"Hear, hear," came from a government supporter.

"Oh, yes, hear, hear," said Dr. Donnelly warmly. "I tell my honorable friend if I were one of the mercenaries in the Conservative army who had been bought and paid for I would not say that. Go and ask the member for Regina, who says you were bought and paid for. Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars was your price."

The member for Willow Bunch went on to read the editorial from The Vancouver Sun. It stated that P. W. Turnbull, E.C., Conservative member for Regina, "boldly admits that R. B. Bennett contributed $750,000 of his own money to the Conservative campaign funds."

"Heaven only knows how much more the $750,000 Mr. Bennett threw into the pot," proceeded the editorial, as quoted by Dr. Donnelly. "But the self-conscious manner in which the Tory parade this admission is proof in itself of the deep resentment every Conservative must feel over the purchase of the party by rich and opulent R. B. Bennett, for that is just what it amounts to."

THEIR INFLUENCE
 The power of the government, however, that it intended itself to keep to the letter of the agreement and to keep it alive as long as it remains in power.

"All we can say," Mr. Hore-Belisha declared, "is this: While in the law nothing binds Parliament for five years or any other period—there is nothing in this act that is irrevocable—we, as long as we have influence, will use all our authority and all our persuasion to see that the signatures on these agreements are honored."

ENABLING LEGISLATION
 The announcement of the government was reinforced by a ruling of Sir Dennis H. Herbert, chairman of committee, that the Ottawa Agreements Bill did not ask Parliament to conform the Ottawa agreements themselves, but to pass legislation enabling the government to carry out the parts of the agreement for which legislation was necessary.

Mr. Hore-Belisha said the British delegation in Ottawa had assumed a moral obligation to see that what they undertook they carry out to the best of their ability. He added, however, that no legal obligation was imposed on Parliament and that Parliament remained supreme.

WHEAT ROUTES
 The question of the preference on Canadian wheat came up again earlier in the day, and the government reiterated its stand that only wheat shipped from Canadian ports or consigned direct to the United Kingdom via the United States would enjoy the preference of six cents a bushel.

A Liberal effort to secure insertion of a clause providing no goods manufactured or produced in any part of the empire shall be excluded from wheat treatment in the United Kingdom, whether or not they passed through a foreign country in transit, was defeated by a huge majority.

Mr. Hore-Belisha told the House of the principles of empire trade from the standpoint of the United Kingdom and the United States. He explained that the United Kingdom is directly from the empire country of origin to Great Britain, although they might be transported through a foreign country. The United Kingdom, he explained, is directly from the empire country of origin to Great Britain, although they might be transported through a foreign country.

The bill had been in the committee stages for several days, but it was anticipated that there would be only a short debate on third reading and that division would come about 11 o'clock to-night.

The evidence of through consignment produced, preference, however, would not be granted to such goods in this country and that the United States to the United States and then be consigned from there. As regards conditions which importers must fulfill in order to qualify for the preference, we would refer you to paragraph 12 of Customs notice to importers No. 26A."

"It will be observed the whole matter is one of administration, which is solely under the control of the British authorities. I am sending a further dispatch to Great Britain to obtain, if possible, more detailed information."

Methods Used By Machray Explained at Manitoba College Inquiry

Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—Trust funds belonging to the Church of England in this district, the University of Manitoba were being used for dual purposes by Machray and Sharpe as far back as 1921, John Parton, charged today with the board of inquiry investigating loss of endowment funds.

Previous evidence given to the board inquiring into $1,000,000 losses in college funds told only the period between 1924 and 1932, but Parton had since discovered that prior to an audit of 1924 the Machray investment firm was indebted by $142,105 to the university account.

Parton told the board shortages in the college accounts had been covered up by withdrawing securities belonging to other clients and crediting them to the university, while the firm continued to advise its clients from whose accounts they had taken the securities that their funds were still in order.

The securities, he explained, were made to do double duty by being credited first to one account and then to the other.

CHURCH FUNDS BOLSTER
 Pension and superannuation funds of the Anglican Church were used extensively by the Machray firm to bolster the university account, Parton's report showed.

In an itemized statement showing at least in a dozen instances where the investment firm had taken securities from other trusts to balance the university account, Parton explained that an entry on December 1, 1921, purportedly a "temporary loan" to the Canadian European Mortgage Company, was in reality payment of a debt by Machray's firm. That amount was withdrawn from the university account and then covered up by creating mortgages from other accounts, mainly the St. John's College of the Anglican Church.

TALKS IN PRISON
 Interviewed by the board of inquiry in Stony Mountain Penitentiary yesterday, the aged prisoner told the commissioners he could not remember that he had written an old partner of his to go through all the old files with a view to having all angles of business transactions investigated. Later a report would be made to the commission.

Noticing the presence of newspapermen, Mr. Machray cried: "I do not think it is fair or right that I should be written up every day—but I suppose I cannot help it."

Asked how the money had disappeared, he replied he could not say anything. The present time, he emphatically declared he did not personally benefit and "neither did anybody else" so far as he knew.

The ill-wished man lay on a couch as he talked with the board.

 Toronto Woman's Plagiarism Charge Against Writer Dismissed in London

 London, Nov. 3.—The appeal of Florence A. Deeks, Toronto authoress, against a judgment charging plagiarism, was dismissed to-day by the judicial committee of the Privy Council here.

The judicial committee ruled against Miss Deeks in her appeal against the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada which denied her suit for $500,000 from the celebrated author.

When Baron Atkin, presiding justice, dismissed the appeal, the Toronto woman bowed and left the court, making no statement.

The hearing had lasted for nearly three days, during which Miss Deeks personally presented her appeal. At one point she was momentarily overcome with emotion and refused the offer of the judges to adjourn.

QUESTION OF FACT
 At the close of the argument to-day Lord Atkin declared that whether the book, "The Web," the one Miss Deeks had accused the Macmillan Publishing Company, which she claimed had been seen by Mr. Wells and part of whose contents he had used in his "Outline of History," had been improperly handed over and used was a pure question of fact on which the two lower courts in Canada had concluded that the appellants were wrong.

In the ordinary course of events, continued Lord Atkin, the judicial committee would have declined to hear the appeal, which suggested the findings on facts had been wrong, but since Miss Deeks had placed such confidence in the case the court had thought special attention might be taken in the interests of everybody.

The judge further declared the expert witnesses in the lower court in Canada had been allowed to give evidence which really had been beyond the province of the experts.

Miss Deeks took action against Mr. Wells as far back as 1925, but it was not until about two years ago when the case was first heard in the courts and at that time it was dismissed by Mr. Justice W. E. Rennie in the Ontario Supreme Court. Her appeal to the Ontario Appellate Division and the Supreme Court of Canada was refused, and she had left Canada last February to carry her charges to the Privy Council Judicial Committee.

AVIATRIX IN GROUND LOOP
 Plane of Ruth Nicols Badly Damaged at N.Y.; Planned Trans-U.S. Flight

Associated Press
 New York, Nov. 3.—The plane of Ruth Nicols, noted woman flyer, was badly damaged early to-day at the start of what was to have been a transatlantic dash in the interests of President Hoover's campaign. Miss Nicols escaped injury.

The aviatrix, planning a non-stop assault on the cross-country record of Amelia Earhart Putnam, taxied down a 3,000-foot runway at Floyd Bennett Field, skidded off and went into a ground loop. The left wing of her plane buried itself in the ground. Ambulances rushed to the scene in the belief she was injured, but she cut the engine to avoid fire and jumped out quickly, expressing exasperation over the mishap.

M. J. Insull In Court To-morrow
 Canadian Press
 Toronto, Nov. 3.—Extradition proceedings against Martin J. Insull, former power broker and now wanted in the United States for larceny and embezzlement of more than half a million dollars, will not commence at 10 a.m. to-morrow.

The case will be adjourned for at least one week when court opens and it is expected Insull's bail of $50,000 will be renewed.

Insull surrendered to the police at Barrie, October 6, after John Hampton, assistant state attorney of Cook County, Illinois, had obtained a warrant for his arrest.

CHINESE OF KELOWNA SLAIN
 Kelowna, B.C., Nov. 3.—Wong Bat, also known as Wong Sam, wealthy Chinese merchant and hotel owner, was found dead in his garden early yesterday morning. He had been last seen alive at about midnight in a chop suey house in Chinatown, and his death had been caused by a blow on the back of the head from a blunt instrument.

He was known to have had on his person a large sum of money, the tax collector of the Kowloon General Store, of which he was manager. This was missing.

Wong Bat was an old timer of Kelowna, about fifty years old. About two years ago he married a graduate of the University of B.C. who survives him with one child.

An inquest, opened Wednesday, was adjourned pending further investigation.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Germany's Pacific war aims are being set for power to-day, confident Adolf Hitler will poll next Sunday 40 per cent of the vote in the Reichstag election, an increase of 3 per cent over his strength in the last election.

Herriot's Plan Would End Neutral Rights

French Premier's Disarmament Scheme to Be Outlined To-morrow at Conference Committee Meeting in Geneva

Canadian Press and Associated Press
 Toulouse, France, Nov. 3.—Premier Herriot's new disarmament plan calls for abandonment of the rights of neutrality of subscribing nations, it was disclosed to-day as M. Herriot's Radical Socialist party gathered to approve his foreign and other party policies.

The convention is expected to give the disarmament project, a part of the foreign policy, the same overwhelming endorsement the Premier won in the Chamber of Deputies last week.

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 3.—The Disarmament Conference Bureau, steering committee for the conference proper, met again this afternoon without any German present, and again avoided a resumption of Germany's demand for arms equality.

The new French disarmament plan will be outlined to-morrow by Joseph Paul-Boncour, French Minister of War. Next week Premier Herriot probably will submit the plan in written form.

None of the leading European delegates was present to-day. The monetary sub-committee, preparing for the World Economic Conference, has taken a stand for lower tariffs and revised war debts in only limited conditions for the restoration of the gold standard.

BRITAIN'S CURRENCY STAND
 Statements by Lord Fraser, United States member of the Bank for International Settlements, and other leading statesmen drew from French and Phillips, under-secretary of the United Kingdom Treasury, a declaration of Great Britain's conditions for returning to the gold standard.

He said the United Kingdom desired a revision of prohibitive tariffs of other countries before returning to the gold standard, which was suspended more than one year ago.

The British representative maintained restoration would be futile unless certain impediments to international trade were removed.

Answering criticism levelled at the agreements reached at the Ottawa Economic Conference, Mr. Phillips said the United Kingdom desired only higher commodity prices and a thorough readjustment of conditions responsible for Britain's abiding the gold standard.

U.S. BANKS SEE FREER MONEY
 Recent Improvement in Financial Position Viewed With Optimism

By FRANK R. MCCONNELL
 Associated Press Financial Writer
 New York, Nov. 3.—Recent improvement in the financial position of the United States banks, which has been widely commented on in current bank reviews, including that of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, is being hailed by business leaders as an indication the recovery can be readily financed, once it gets well under way.

The unexpectedly good results of foreign government refunding plans whereby their maturing bonds have been replaced by obligations bearing lower interest coupons, have been regarded as proof the financial machinery of Great Britain and France has been well lubricated. And on this side of the Atlantic there have been notable signs recorded in the last several months toward credit expansion.

DEPOSITS INCREASE
 This expansion, which has been accompanied by a gain of nearly $1,000,000,000 in the last half year in deposits of leading New York banks, although not as large as has been expected, is a nominal degree to banks outside New York. It has been largely the result of two wholesome forces at work. One has been the return of gold to this country, after its flight earlier in the year, and the other has been the return of hoarded money, which, with reviving confidence, has gradually been released from the tin boxes of hoarders and allowed to work back to the banks.

CHEMAMINUS NOTES
 Chemaminus, Nov. 3.—On Friday afternoon Mrs. Noel Lang, supervisor of the Little Helpers, entertained the little ones and their mothers in St. Michaels and All Angels Parish Hall. Tea was served. Mrs. Lang being assisted by members of the Women's Auxiliary. Twenty-five Little Helpers and twenty-one adults spent a happy time. The children played games and each was given a toy.

On Saturday evening Lady Lake, president of the Diocesan Women's Auxiliary, gave the local Auxiliary a report on the annual convention in Toronto. Mrs. Nelson of Victoria accompanied the ladies. Mrs. Lang was served after the address. About twenty members were present.

The Women's Auxiliary to St. Michaels and All Angels, ladies, who recently held a card party in the Parish Hall. There was a very good attendance and seven tables of bridge and five of what were made up. Prize-winners were—Mrs. W. H. Bice, Mrs. Walter Laidlaw; consolation, Miss N. Wollaston; gentlemen, Rev. Eric Robotham; consolation, Gordon Cook; ladies, Mrs. W. H. Bice, Mrs. Wollaston; gentlemen, Mr. Donald Clarke; consolation, Oliver Beacham, who won a tie with Mrs. Stubbs; consolation, Mr. Cherrington. Refreshments were served by Mrs. B. Cave, Mrs. W. H. Bice, Mrs. William Alister and Mrs. J. Cherrington.

THREE DEATHS IN FIGHT
 Lapeer, Mich., Nov. 3 (Associated Press).—Frank Greenman, Oakland County under-sheriff, died in a hospital here yesterday evening after a fatal injury in a gun battle between officers and a bandit suspect in a farm house near here Wednesday. Deputy Sheriff Harvey Wedder of Oakland County also was killed, as was Ben Dillon, the suspect, who died apparently by his own hand.

EXCHANGE RATES COMMONS TOPIC

Coote Suggests Canadian-British Parity; House Votes Down His Motion on Ottawa Conference Treaty

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The Commons yesterday evening voted down a motion to make ratification of the Canadian-Great Britain trade treaty contingent on the establishment of parity between the Canadian dollar and the British pound. The vote was 109 to 71.

The House divided on straight party lines, the government voting against the motion, which was supported by the opposition. Two opposition members, however, supported the government, these being W. H. Moore, Liberal, Ontario, Canada, and Henri Bourassa, Independent, Quebec.

RULE OUT BY SPEAKER
 Earlier in the sitting, Hon. Charles Stewart, Liberal, West Edmonton, former Minister of the Interior presented a motion which would have delayed ratification of the Canada-Great Britain trade treaty until the individual tariff changes were discussed. It was ruled out of order by Speaker Black on a technical point.

Dr. Thomas, Donnelly, Liberal, Wilkes-Bunch, Sask. moved an amendment containing the reservation that approval of the Canada-Great Britain trade treaty should not prevent Canada from joining any movement at the World Economic conference to lower tariffs and clarify exchange difficulties. This amendment was ruled out of order by Speaker Black.

RATES ON WHEAT
 G. G. Coote, U.F.A. Mace, moved that the House should consider its purpose, he said, was to make ratification of the Canada-Great Britain agreement contingent on the Canadian dollar being established at parity with the British pound.

Unless the motion carried, additional provision, said Mr. Coote, he did not see what benefit the treaty would confer on the prairie farmers, nor, in view of the British interpretation of the preference, could he foresee anything but higher ocean freight rates for Canadian wheat.

The United Kingdom government had set forth that Canadian wheat shipped through United States ports would not enjoy the preference, that it must be conveyed to the United Kingdom through Canadian ports. In previous years considerable Canadian wheat had passed through New York to England, carried across the ocean in liners. That bulk shipment insured low freight rates. How much of this came from the cargo would be given to the smaller vessels calling at Canadian ports, with the result that freight rates would immediately be increased.

NO BENEFIT NOW
 No benefit could accrue to Canada from these agreements until the Canadian dollar was placed on parity with the pound, for the depreciated currency of other countries made it impossible for Canada to compete with them in the British market.

The time had come when Canada should finally, frankly, fairly and openly abandon the gold standard, he said. This would be accomplished without any discussion of the Canadian monetary system.

STEVENS SPEAKS
 Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, said:

"I am far more concerned—and in this I think I reflect the views of almost every honorable member in this House—with very much of what the honorable gentleman has said in regard to the burden of debt on debtors not only in this country but in the world over, and in regard also to the perplexities that confront Canada in common with other countries, the variability of exchange, and all such matters, every thoughtful person is in hearty and absolute accord."

"But the suggestion that the agreement between this country and Great Britain and the other Dominions should be put in jeopardy by the introduction of this issue, or this, shall I say, mandatory request of those who have initiated the treaties, is, I think, unwise."

"It is the difficulty of finding the solution of this problem that is causing so much confusion in the world to-day."

BURDEN TOO GREAT
 U.F.A. speakers had contended there was an impossible weight of debt on the shoulders of the farmers of Canada, and other countries, commented Mr. Stevens. "I do not think anyone can question that contention," he said. "The farmers of this country cannot liquidate their debts under present conditions. Under present price levels, under the present values of commodities, and the necessity to produce larger quantities to pay debts, the burden when price levels were higher. A problem impossible of solution is being faced by the debtor class of this country, which is numbered by hundreds of thousands. Other prime producers are in precisely the same position."

The minister urged the Coote amendment be not pressed.

STUDIED BY CABINET
 "I know," Mr. Stevens said, "the Prime Minister and by colleagues are all deeply concerned about it, and it may be that other ways will be found of meeting the difficulty. If I were to order his cabinet around like a flock of school boys, to thump the table and dictate to everybody."

"Perhaps that is why, too, he felt so free to dedicate his life five times to the service of his party. Mr. Bennett certainly violated no item in his creed of selfishness when he dedicated himself to himself."

"Mr. Bennett then bought his premiership for three quarters of a million dollars," continued Dr. Donnelly, quoting the editorial, "Where did he get that money? How much of it came from Canadian Pacific real estate operations in Calgary? How much of it was derived from his Imperial Oil associations? How much of it came from the pockets of the late Mrs. Eddy? Surely the public is entitled to know the origin of all campaign funds."

Dr. Donnelly said he brought up the matter because there were men in the House who had "the audacity to stand up in the House and talk about Beauchamp and such things."

FARMER KILLS SONS AND SELF

Michigan Man Had Been Quarreling With Two Boys Over Money

Lapeer, Mich., Nov. 3.—Gabriel Kostas, a farmer living two miles east of Clifford, Mich., in Lapeer County, to-day shot and killed his two sons, Steve, fifteen, and Tony, fourteen, and then shot himself to death following a family quarrel.

Sheriff Byron Courter said Kostas fired shots at the elder son, Steve, in the barn, then went to the house, where Tony Kostas was asleep, shot him, and returned to the barn, where he ended his own life.

Courter said a housekeeper in the Kostas home informed him the father had been quarreling for several days with the sons over money obtained for produce. The quarrel was renewed to-day, she told the sheriff.

UPRISING IN SPAIN NIPPED

Military-Conservative Revolution Was Planned During French Premier's Visit

Madrid, Nov. 3.—It was revealed in official circles yesterday that a military-conservative uprising during the three-day visit of Premier Edouard Herriot of France, which ended yesterday evening, was frustrated by authorities.

Several arrests were expected to follow the departure of the French Premier. The uprising, it was said, was planned for yesterday evening, but was prevented when officials learned details of the plot in time.

Paris-bent travelers protested when they learned the government had monopolized the regular night Paris express for the Herriot party.

Foreign Minister Louis de Zulueta said he had discussed "practical form" of Franco-Spanish collaboration and mutual problems of the two nations along general lines with M. Herriot. He said the French Premier had explained the disarmament programme France was to present at the Geneva conference this month.

M. Herriot made a similar explanation of his discussions here.

FARMERS OPPOSING FIVE-YEAR TERMS

Manitoba United Farmers Protest Ratification of Trade Treaties Beyond Life of Present Parliament Without Mandate From People

Canadian Press
Dauphin, Man., Nov. 3.—Emphatic protest against ratification of the Ottawa Imperial Conference agreements beyond the life of the present Parliament without a mandate from the people was voted by the United Farmers of Manitoba at an annual convention here yesterday afternoon.

The protest, embodied in a resolution, received unanimous support. It charges conditions have been aggravated by the trade policies of the present administration and urges "the present policies, so ruinous to agriculture, be discontinued."

The resolution drafted, provide they shall remain in force five years.

BONUS NOT APPROVED

The United Farmers yesterday endorsed approval for a resolution denouncing the demand of the United Farmers of Alberta for a five-cent-a-bushel bonus on wheat.

Refusal to adopt the bonus plan was based on the contention that it was contrary to the principles of the association with regard to tariff.

DEBT READJUSTMENT

Seeking relief from the burden of oppressive debts, the United Farmers took action toward calling a conference of creditor and debtor classes for consideration of ways to provide for scaling down of present indebtedness and for a reduction of all interest charges on both public and private loans. The executive board was instructed to promote such a conference at the earliest opportunity by a resolution adopted.

Other resolutions adopted seek to protect land owners in the case of expropriation, against mortgage companies in obtaining one-third crop leases and to widen the scope of the debt adjustment board of Manitoba. Another resolution dealt with would prohibit mortgage companies or individuals from taking more than one-third crop lease to meet obligations.

UNITED EFFORTS

If all the agricultural organizations in the Dominion could get together to develop an enormous market for Canadian wheat it would be an outstanding achievement, declared Hon. T. A. Crerar, in addressing the United Farmers at yesterday evening's session. Speaking before an audience of more than 500 delegates and townsmen, Mr. Crerar recorded some "thoughts on the farmers' movement, past and present." He knew of no similar movement in the world compared with the agrarian movement in western Canada, which brought with it not only service to the farmer but service to Canada as a whole.

Mr. Crerar believed international control of wheat agencies was the "fantastic dream," and declared that for the next ten years, the people would be living "in a fiercely competitive world."

MOVIE TEST IN MONTREAL

Canadian Press
Montreal, Nov. 3.—Ministers of twelve city churches of various denominations have been subpoenaed by the police department to appear in recorder's court to-morrow to answer to charges of having unlawfully kept church halls open for the exhibition of motion pictures without having paid a theatre tax.

An important legal battle looms. The churches claim the right to hold motion pictures for children of the congregations who are banned from attending regular picture shows when under sixteen years of age.

Hoover Promised Washington Support

Associated Press
Seattle, Nov. 3.—Assurances Washington State will be found in the Republican column nationally and that the state ticket will be swept into office November 8 as in years past were wired national headquarters today by Ray Carroll, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

"We are sure of the Washington Electoral vote," Carroll said. "We have carefully checked reports of county chairmen by our own polls and the results confirm our opinion that the swing to Hoover has upset earlier political conditions."

Carroll listed the visit of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate, to the state as one of the factors which have contributed to the Republican strength.

Man and His Wife Waive Jury Trial

Associated Press
Los Angeles, Nov. 3.—Accused by the state in the so-called "bridge party murder case," Mr. and Mrs. Albert Olson appeared in court here and waived trial by jury, putting their fate in the hands of Judge Isaac Pacht.

They are charged with having lured Charles H. Schulz, wealthy engraver, to a bridge party next door to his home, October 8, and shooting him to death just after he had kissed his fiancée goodnight on the eve of their wedding day.

The middle-aged Mrs. Olson was found later to be the beneficiary of Schulz's $150,000 will.

Saloon Move In Ontario Fought

Canadian Press
London, Ont., Nov. 3.—There is a deliberate movement on foot to bring back the open saloon, said Rev. Andrew Rodden, pastor of First United Church, Vancouver, in an address here yesterday evening. This would form one of the chief issues in the next Ontario election, he predicted. He urged his listeners to ignore affiliations when the time comes.

Mr. Rodden is in charge of mission work on the waterfront in Vancouver, and deplores the working of the British Columbia beer parlour system. "Vancouver is the wettest spot in the Dominion. There the brewer is king," he said.

PEDESTRIANS CHAMPIONED

Need Not Scurry From Autos, Judge Says in Vancouver in Awarding Damages

Vancouver, Nov. 3.—Rallying to the aid of pedestrians, Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald in the B.C. Supreme Court has laid down the principle that the man on foot does not have to scurry out of the way of the sound of a motorist's horn.

For injuries sustained July 31, 1931, when struck by the automobile of Louis Frank Piel on Hastings Street at the Randolph Avenue intersection, where she was preparing to board a street car, Mrs. Sarah James was awarded $2,500 damages against Piel. Her husband, William James, was allowed $700 for expenses and loss which he had incurred through his wife's disability.

"Pedestrians are not compelled to scurry out of the way on the sound of a horn at the peril of being run down, but the driver must exercise necessary care and prudence to avoid an accident and must not violate the rights which pedestrians and others have under the common law," said the judge.

He found the defendant was negligent in not keeping a proper lookout and exercising proper care.

Mrs. James' mind was a blank as to what happened prior and subsequent to the accident, remarked the judge. It was a condition of amnesia he said, and was not unusual. He exonerated her of any blame.

TRANSIENTS IN TORONTO

Associated Press
Chicago, Nov. 3.—There was a great protest parade of unemployed in Chicago the other day and Daniel Ryan, county commissioner, says he thinks he knows the reason. It is the coffee, he says. He took a sip of the kind of coffee the jobless have been drinking and said something like this: "My goodness! Is this coffee? No wonder they held a parade."

BOTTLE WAS EVIDENCE
Seward, Ill., Nov. 3.—For at least sixty days no more all-night church services in connection with Ernie Meyer's case were held. The members of the congregation of Rev. Charles A. Stroupe's village church recently met and vowed they would remain in session until Meyer's alleged speaker was cowed. One member went after a bottle of evidence and the place was raided. Yesterday a judge gave Meyer sixty days at a state farm.

HEADS FARMERS
Dauphin, Man., Nov. 3.—Roy McPhail of Brandon yesterday evening was elected president of the United Farmers of Manitoba. He succeeded J. Ward, Dauphin, who retired. Mr. McPhail was elected over B. E. Lewis of Stonewall.

EVIDENCE ON SHOOTING
Kerobert, Sask., Nov. 3.—Greenwald, thirty-year-old baker, who is alleged to have fired a shotgun Halloween, as the result of which eight young people were wounded, appeared before J. J. Zubick, J.P., yesterday evening and was remanded for a week. Widowson, who is charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm on the person of one of the victims, is not in custody.

REFUSED FREEDOM
Los Angeles, Nov. 3.—Fourteen city jail prisoners who thought a meal in the hand was worth two in the bush refused yesterday evening to follow four others who piled loose two heavy iron bars, scrambled over a fifteen-foot fence and escaped. "We didn't want to go without our supper," chorused the steadfast.

FALCONBRIDGE EARNINGS
Toronto, Nov. 3.—Falconbridge Nickel Mines Limited, reports a large increase in the gross operating profit for the third quarter of 1932. The profit amounted to $508,082 compared with $167,423 in the previous quarter and $79,283 for the nine months ending September 30. The increase is stated to be due to sales eating into the stocks carried forward last year.

RACKET EXPOSED
Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 3.—An insurance "racket" whereby a man who utilized his ability to feign paralysis had defrauded a Rochester insurance company of $74,000, was revealed here yesterday. Police said a warrant had been issued for his arrest and that he had been sought all over the country. Officers said he was able to keep paralysed of the lower limbs so well, insurance doctors stated, that red hot instruments or needles seemingly failed to produce any sensation.

WITNESSES GAVE EVIDENCE THAT WHEN THE police dispersed the gathering Jaaska ran across a yard into a barbed wire fence. Evidently the charge on the nose was caused by a barb.

Dr. G. E. Eakins said the germs were carried by persons who came in contact with animals. Otto Paito, a witness related how he had dressed Jaaska's wound shortly after arrival from his farm, where he cared for animals.

The verdict of the jury was that Jaaska had died in St. Joseph's Hospital, the evidence being clear that the body showed no evidence of blows, but had a small cut on the side of the nose caused by something sharp. "We find the deceased died from lockjaw and that the tetanus germ caused lockjaw had entered this cut," said the verdict.

MINISTER CAUGHT READING SPEECH

Hon. T. G. Murphy Tells Commons Others Did It Before He Did

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—"Every honorable member knows it is against the rule for him to read his speech—but the rule has been more honored in the breach than in the observance," Hon. George Black, Speaker of the Commons, observed during the debate yesterday afternoon.

J. L. Brown, Liberal, Llagar, Man., called attention of the Speaker to the fact that Hon. T. G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior, was reading his speech. "I am reading my speech," retorted the minister, "as many other honorable members have done in this debate."

The Speaker then made his observation and said he was glad attention had been called to the matter. He hoped that in the future the rule would be more closely observed.

Wife Wins Fight With Kidney Acids

Speaker Black Allows A. Lavergne to Use Word in House

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—It is not unparliamentary for a member of the Commons to call a fellow member a "fourflusher," in the opinion of Speaker George Black. The ruling made yesterday afternoon, threatened to precipitate an acrimonious discussion until Armand Lavergne, Conservative, Montmagny, Que., Deputy Speaker of the House, who had used the word in the debate Monday evening, made satisfactory amends.

J. A. Bradette, Liberal, Temiskaming North, Ont., was the injured person. When Mr. Lavergne was speaking Monday evening he remarked there was less unemployment than in 1920.

"I would like the honorable gentleman to come and see conditions in my constituency," said Mr. Bradette.

The reply of Mr. Lavergne, according to Hansard, was: "I will go whenever my honorable friend invites me. I call his bluff right away because I was never afraid of a fourflusher."

Speaker Black said he did not think there had been any reflection on Mr. Bradette's character, and could not see any reason to call on the Deputy Speaker for a retraction.

Thousands of women and men suffer from Kidney and Bladder trouble have discovered a simple, easy way to sleep fine and feel better. Get Up Night, Nausea, Leg Pains, Rheumatism, Nervousness, Puffy Eyelids, Neuralgia, Burning, Smarting Urin Acid and Kidney trouble, by using a Doctor's prescription called Cystex in 15 minutes, often giving amazing results in 24 to 48 hours. Try it under the fair-play guarantee to fix you up to your satisfaction or money back on return of empty package. Cystex is only 75c at drugists. (Adv.)

Germans Watch France and Spain

Associated Press
Berlin, Nov. 3.—Premier Edouard Herriot's visit to Spain has caused considerable speculation in the German newspapers regarding the possibility France is seeking Spain's support in the international councils at Geneva and taking further steps to consolidate her possessions in North Africa.

A point of special interest to the newspapers concerns a report that France desires to obtain from Spain right of passage through Rio de Oro, the Spanish colony on the west coast of Africa, where there is an important base at Villa Cisneros for air services to South America.

ARE THE OTTAWA AGREEMENTS BINDING OR NOT?

There seems to be almost as marked a difference of opinion between Ottawa and London relative to the binding qualities of the trade agreement reached at the recent Economic Conference as there was between the delegates of Canada and Great Britain during that historic gathering. The impression at the Canadian capital has been that the agreement is binding for a period of five years, but Mr. Hore-Belisha, Financial Secretary of the Treasury in London, told the British House of Commons that Parliament legally was not bound to observe the agreement for that period, and that legislation which puts the various provisions into operation could be repealed by another Parliament at any time. The obligation is moral.

But Ottawa's interpretation is different. This is what Mr. Bennett said in the House of Commons on Wednesday, October 12, according to the official record:

"The present agreements will be in existence for a period of five years and thereafter will be subject to a six months' notice of termination. We believe that not less than five years will be required in order to fully demonstrate the value of these undertakings."

Mr. Mackenzie King said on Monday, October 17: "If this agreement is approved, the Parliament of Canada for the next five years can not alter its own customs duties except in a very restricted way." It is evident, therefore, that both party leaders in the House of Commons at Ottawa believe that Canada is bound by the agreement for five years, and legislation is being forced through Parliament on that understanding. It will be something of a shock for Ottawa to learn that the British government does not interpret the agreements in that light, and that it is competent for any British Parliament to repeal the Act putting them into operation at any time, or to make such variations in its tariff laws as it deems fit, regardless of the agreements.

It is clear enough that the British government does not regard the agreements entered into at Ottawa as being in the same category as its treaty engagements with foreign powers. For example, its trade treaty with Russia called for a six months' notice of cancellation and that notice has been given. According to Mr. Hore-Belisha the terms of the agreement with Canada can be made inoperative at any time notwithstanding the provision that they shall remain in force for five years. On the other hand, according to Mr. Bennett, Canada is bound by those terms for the period stipulated in the agreement. There must be something wrong somewhere.

There have been other marked differences in interpretation between London and Ottawa, notably in regard to wheat and copper, and before long we shall hear of still more. The explanation of these phenomena lies in the cold fact that these agreements were last-minute compromises arising out of conflicts at the conference which at times reached a high note of bitterness and recrimination, and they were rushed through to save the gathering from ending up in a complete fiasco.

The result is that they can be interpreted to mean almost anything. Great Britain intends to interpret them in such a way as to avoid the slightest fracture of her trading relations with foreign nations, upon which for the most part her solvency depends, while the Canadian government will interpret them in such a way as to preserve its high protective barriers not only against foreign nations but against Great Britain herself. A few more revelations of this kind will convince the public that the Ottawa conference was nothing more than a solemn farce.

A CHANCE TO ASSIST A NOBLE CAUSE

In this community the local branch of the Red Cross is conducting a campaign for funds to assist it to carry on its fine humanitarian work. Something like $18,000 is required to meet the organization's need in British Columbia, and as the morning paper very properly points out, if 18,000 public-spirited citizens throughout the province would pay a dollar a year as a membership fee, it would be possible to balance the budget. While this may be more easily said than done, it should not be a very difficult job for a province of 700,000 people to raise the amount mentioned, even with more modest contributions from all those who are earning.

It is hardly necessary to refer to the noble work of the Red Cross during the Great War; but it must not be supposed that its service to humanity is called upon only in times of international conflict. Its peace-time programme continues in operation unostentatiously in order that suffering may be alleviated. Many a settler in the isolated districts of the province has been thankful for the inspiration and assistance which the organization has given him when a feeling of helplessness had overtaken him.

This winter, more than at any time in recent years, the demands upon the Red Cross will put a heavy strain upon the resources of its treasury. Surely those who are able to contribute in small or large amounts will never let it be said that the appeal now being made fell short of its objective. The Times bespeaks for the local branch of the organization a most liberal response.

VANCOUVER HAS A NEW MORNING NEWSPAPER

The Times welcomes The Vancouver News, the new morning daily which made its first bow to the public on Tuesday, and expresses the hope that it will have a long and prosperous life. The first issue was of ten pages, newsworthy, carefully edited, typographically attractive, and generally the sort of newspaper which should appeal to readers.

Since The Star ceased publication some months ago, Greater Vancouver has been without a morning paper, despite the fact that there obviously is a field for one there. It would be safe to say, indeed, that Vancouver's position in this regard has been unique. Few important towns and cities in Canada are without a morning newspaper as well as evening editions.

It should be noted that The News is owned in Vancouver and its editorial staff are all well-known Vancouver journalists.

MR. LAVERGNE DOES AND SAYS STRANGE THINGS

Mr. Armand Lavergne, Conservative member of the House of Commons for Montmagny and Deputy-Speaker, does and says some very strange things in Parliament. He has been the guiding spirit behind a very weak movement for the restoration of the titles system in Canada. He followed this up with a statement in the House yesterday that there is less unemployment in the Dominion now than there was in 1929.

The titles system in Canada, of course, is as dead as Julius Caesar and there will never be any serious attempt to revive the corpse. Even in Great Britain the periodical lists continue to grow less, and eventually the practice will die out. But when Mr. Lavergne says there is less unemployment at the present time than there was in 1929, he is talking nonsense.

Approximately four months after the Bennett government took office in 1930 the number of idle workers in Canada was estimated at around 200,000, or about 80,000 more than in the summer of that year. Recent estimates of the number of unemployed now vary between 650,000 and 750,000. As a matter of fact, the employment index in 1929 was the highest ever recorded in Canada or in the United States. Mr. Lavergne may verify this from official documents on file at Ottawa.

A "FASHION PLATE" OF OTHER DAYS PASSES ON

The death recently of the Marquis Boni de Castellane in France takes our memory back to the days when he was in the limelight and attracted the attention of "society" on both sides of the Atlantic, but especially in the European capitals. It can be said of him that he had about as peculiar a claim to fame as any man could get, although he never accomplished anything of any consequence. He married Anna Gould and her millions, which introduced him to Americans; and he was the very glass of fashion, the arbiter of Parisian elegance, with his heliotrope vests and his regular morning strolls down the Champs Elysees.

Decorative then, and quite useless, he served as the perfect representative of a vanishing type—the Beau Brummel, the "dude" of former days, the hot-house growth with which a wealthy and aimless society always manages to adorn itself. But Boni outlived his day. There was practically no place for him in the post-war world. We know that the post-war world held very many quite rich people, and they were, and are, as fond of display as the wealthy of all times and places have been; but there has been an ominous, rumbling undercurrent of discontent with this display in recent years, and the Beau Brummel has not dazzled the public eye as he used to.

We have reached a point now, of course, in which a very large and voluble section of the world's population is ready to call in question the whole form of society for which the Beau Brummel stands. The man at the bottom of the scale is not any longer ready to be diverted from consideration of his own woes by the playful caperings of scented boulevardiers in heliotrope waistcoats. Such a sight, instead of making him chuckle admiringly, is more apt to provoke him to deep and abiding anger.

The stages through which society passes on its long, never-ending evolution are sometimes bizarre and hard to understand. It is evident now that we are emerging from the era which set up glittering duds as its mileposts.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

CO-OPERATION AMONG FARMERS

The Washington Post

In the heat of criticism of the Farm Board for its unfortunate attempts to stabilize prices through extensive purchases of farm products, sight has been lost of its good work in furthering the formation of farm co-operatives, which to-day count more than 1,000,000 members. The form of scientific marketing points the way to better prices much more surely than the declaration of regional holidays and violent but ineffective strikes and blockades.

THE REPUBLICAN TASK

The New York Times

The administration is asking for re-election from millions of voters with a "grouch." The dissatisfaction arises from conditions which appeared during the life of the administration itself. At first, the party managers feared that this dissatisfaction existed, but they were not certain. Maine has convinced them. A voting temper of this sort is the most difficult thing to combat in politics. This is the reason why the one revelation of it in a comparatively small state has thrown such a fright into the Republicans.

A THOUGHT

Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth: therefore despitest not thou the chastening of the Almighty.—Job v. 17.

Crime and punishment grow out of one stem. Punishment is a fruit that, unsuspected, ripens within the flower of the pleasure that concealed it.—Emerson.

Loose Ends

Another charming legend from the dream house 'cross the Bay—some more about killing and killers—the curious human race—and the real sport of kings.

By H. B. W.

WHITE ELEPHANT

THE NOTION that the sale of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway will be decided by the people through their representatives in the Legislature is amusing, but not very far from the truth. The deal now being negotiated will be decided by a majority of the government caucus, which consists of thirty-five members. Thus eighteen members can decide it and put it through. In actual fact, whatever a majority of the cabinet says about it will go, as always happens when a majority of the cabinet is in power. These six, in the end will be guided by the Premier and one or two others. This is no criticism of the Talmie Government. The same arrangement always applies. But to say the public is deciding through these men is only a quaint legend for after five years of office many of the men who put through the deal do not represent the public, could not be re-elected. This most likely would be so under any government. Large matters are seldom decided by the public. While the public is being lulled by the promise of a quinine legend, for after five years of office many of the men who put through the deal do not represent the public, could not be re-elected. UNDERSELLING VET POPPIES

Toronto Poppy Fund Executive Is Buying From Commercial Firms in Protest

Governor-General and Bennett to Urge Patronage of Vetcraft Shops

Canadian Press
Toronto, Nov. 3.—The executive of the poppy fund of Toronto has announced it will sell on Remembrance Day poppies made by commercial firms rather than vetcraft poppies because of refusal of the Dominion Government and the Canadian Legion to provide poppies at less than $21 a thousand.

This was followed by an announcement by the Ontario command of the Legion that the Governor-General, the Earl of Bessborough, and Premier Bennett would deliver addresses at Ottawa Sunday urging purchase of vetcraft poppies.

The poppy fund executive hailed this announcement as an influence to becloud the issue. It claimed commercial companies, offered poppies made by veterans and strung by veterans' wives and widows at from $5 to $7.50 a thousand.

The Legion claimed its poppies were made by veterans who were disabled and otherwise unable to earn a living. It contended vetcraft shops had paid out $43,347 in wages last year and that "it comes as a rebuff to unselfish endeavor there is reason to suggest that commercially produced emblems are even considered as a substitution for the principle and spirit that has for ten years stood behind Poppy Day."

The Legion, it said, demanded $21 of which $5 would go as "commission" to the provincial and Dominion commands.

THREE-YEAR-OLD STIRS CITY HUNT

Little Johnny Reid Hikes to Zoo While Police and Citizens Scour Brooklyn

But Eerie Darkness With Coyotes Howling Too Much For Him

New York, Nov. 3.—Johnny Reid's mother sent him down to the street at 5 o'clock in the morning with his face all clean shaven. He took his toy auto with him.

"Stay near the door, now, Johnny," his mother said. "Don't go away."

Then she went back up the dim-lit stairs of the house at 317A, Twenty-second Street, which is near the Gowanus Canal in Brooklyn, and gave her attention to the twins, Basil and Austin, who are only four months old. Vivian, sixteen months old, and Jessie, who is "four, going on five."

For a while Johnny's shrill cries as he ran up and down the street with his toy auto were heard by his mother. His auto assured her that her three-year-old baby was safely engaged in healthy play. Later the rumbling of passing trucks drowned out most other sounds and she could no longer hear him, but Johnny is a good boy, so she did not worry.

At noon, when luncheon was ready, she turned to her husband, Howard, a corkworker, now unemployed, and asked him to get Johnny. The father went downstairs. On the step at the street door was Johnny's auto, but the child was not in sight. A trip around the block was futile.

The father questioned other children, and some of the adult neighbors. No one had seen him for hours. Mrs. Reid, alarmed now, joined the hunt. An indiscreet neighbor revealed the disappearance of Billy Gaffney, the four-year-old boy who lived five blocks away, who went down to play one morning in February, five years ago, and never been seen again.

Detectives Frank Black Fox and Jim Dwyer, who had worked on the Gaffney case, stopped in front of the Reid home five minutes later in a police car. They got a description of Johnny, and, aided by scores of men, women and children, went into cellars with flashlights, into nearby junkies, attics, and hallways. Still no sign of Johnny.

"I just put fresh blue overalls on him," the mother wept. "He was clean and his face all washed. He was a good boy."

The hunt stretched out to include the black, oily water of Gowanus. Men went aboard the barges moored in the canal and looked under tarpaulins in grimy cabins and through the lumber yards on the shore. The search went on for hours. No sign of Johnny.

In Prospect Park, where the trees now are rich with color, Patrolman Otto Hoffman patrolled the menagerie best. At 6 p.m., when the dusk lay thick on the distant meadows, all the visitors had gone. The coyotes began to pace up and down in their cages and the big brown bear across the way prepared to turn in for the night because there was no audience.

The coyotes howled their melancholy call. Patrolman Hoffman was about to move on when a new sound mingled with the coyote howl and the wind's sighing. He paused to listen. It was the sobbing of a child, but in the darkness he could not locate it. Suddenly a tiny figure came toward him out of the darkness. It was a little boy. He was frightened by the howling of the coyotes.

Patrolman Hoffman picked him up. Peering into the little chubby face all grimy with tears that had been smeared away by dusty hands, he said friendly things.

"The wolves can't get out, son," he explained. "And the bear only looks big because it's dark."

The sobbing stopped. The child wiped his hands on his blue overalls. "I'm Johnny," he said. "I'm lost. I'm Johnny. The little head looked and fell in tired sleep on Hoffman's shoulder.

The moment Hoffman bore him into the station house, the desk lieutenant recognized him from the description broadcast in a general alarm He telephoned to the station house. The next day to the Reids. By the time she got to the station house, Johnny had had his supper, had repeated that he was "a good boy," and then had curled up in a chair behind the lieutenant's desk and gone to sleep again. The two-mile hike to the menagerie had exhausted him.

His aunt took him home.

RAIL PROPOSALS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Beatty Suggested to Duff Board C.P.R. Take Over C.N.R. on Lease; G. Ruel, K.C., of C.N.R. Proposed Temporary Amalgamation; Thornton's Proposal Basis of Commission's Recommendations

Canadian Press
Montreal, Nov. 3.—A dispatch from the Ottawa correspondent, printed in the Montreal Daily Star, says:

"Plans put forward by E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Gerald Ruel, K.C., former legal vice-president of the Canadian National Railway, for the solution of Canada's vexed railway situation were rejected by the recent royal commission on transportation in order that the scheme suggested by Sir Henry Thornton, former C.N.R. president, might be adopted in its substantial outline.

"This is the interesting fact disclosed by the evidence of the royal commission, which has just been deposited in the Parliamentary Library.

"The evidence, which is voluminous, makes engrossing reading. Perhaps as sensational an angle to it as any is the statement of Mr. Ruel, after his years of association with the Canadian National system, that he does not believe in public ownership.

"My experience of public ownership of railways has been that it means government ownership," he told the commissioners.

"You mean political ownership?" Sir Joseph Flavelle asked him.

"Yes," Mr. Ruel returned.

BEATTY'S PLAN

"The plan of President Beatty of the C.P.R. for solution of the country's transportation difficulties, as revealed by the evidence was for the government to lease the C.N.R. to the C.P.R. for a long term, or else in perpetuity.

Mr. Beatty estimated the C.P.R. management of the two systems would result in economies totaling $50,000,000 annually.

In commenting on this scheme,

C.N.R. witnesses before the commission were inclined to shade Mr. Beatty's estimate of the savings possible under the plan. They would not amount, in their opinion, to more than $30,000,000 annually.

RUEL'S PLAN

"Mr. Ruel's proposal was virtually temporary amalgamation. He offered the commission a draft bill to be presented to Parliament, which would create what he termed a 'railway managing committee.' That committee would have consisted of ten directors, of whom the C.P.R. would appoint five and the C.N.R. five. The two roads would then have executed entrusting agreements, turning over their properties to the committee to manage for a period of five years, the arrangement to be terminated or continued by Parliament at the end of that time as might be deemed best.

"Mr. Ruel computed the savings which would be possible under his plan would reach $30,000,000 per year.

"It was in connection with his presentation of his proposal that the then legal vice-president of the C.N.R. frankly stated his disbelief in public ownership of railways. He said that in his long experience with the system, public ownership had always meant government ownership, by which, he agreed, he meant political ownership.

PROBLEM OF WAGES

"By Mr. Loree, the American member of the royal commission, Mr. Ruel was asked why the C.N.R. did not cut wages by 15 per cent and save $37,000,000 over night?

"Mr. Ruel replied he only wished they could. Their inability to do so illustrated the very point he had raised. If the railway management did pass such an order there would be a preemptory demand from the government before twenty-four hours was over to rescind it. Political pressure would be exercised.

THORNTON'S PLAN

"Sir Henry Thornton's scheme was to keep both railways intact, but to provide some effective plan of enforcing co-operation in place of existing competition. His proposal was that a rump of the royal commission should be left to act as a railway arbitral court, with authority to set to curb competition or bring about co-operation. Sir Henry also suggested the unwieldy C.N.R. board, selected on the basis of geographic qualification should be scrapped in favor of a smaller body of, say, ten members.

"It was Sir Henry's scheme the commission virtually adopted. The integrity of the railways was preserved, the suggested rump of the royal commission became the arbitral board, and the board of directors was slashed, even more drastically than Sir Henry had recommended, to the proposed executive committee of three."

agriculture over the period before materialization of the government's long-term agricultural policies.

The "serious" plight of farmers in the United Kingdom, the members said, made it imperative some temporary policy be adopted as soon as possible.

The Premier declared he would not allow small considerations to stand in the way of practical measures to alleviate existing handicaps to the farmers.

OFFICERS TO BE PROMOTED

B.C. Police Advancements to Take Effect at Middle of Month

Confirming the unofficial announcement made some weeks ago, Col. J. H. McMullin, commissioner of B.C. police, yesterday said promotions of several officers on the force would go into effect on November 15.

Inspector T. W. S. Parsons, for many years in charge of "A" division, will take the rank of assistant commissioner, second in command to Col. McMullin. Inspector Parsons has been acting in this post for some time.

Sub-inspector Bob Owens becomes inspector, filling the position held by Inspector Parsons.

Sub-inspector John Shirras who has been acting head of the Vancouver division will be placed in charge as inspector at Prince Rupert and Inspector Forbes Cruickshank, who has been absent through ill-health, will resume command at Vancouver.

The retirement of Assistant Commissioner J. R. Dunwoody, which has necessitated the changes, will also take effect on November 15.

Mrs. W. C. Nichol Hostess At Child Welfare Tea

Many Beautifully-made Garments, Destined for Children of Needy Veterans, Contributed by Gonzales Chapter I.O.E. Yesterday Afternoon When Regent Is Hostess

The child welfare work of the Gonzales Chapter I.O.E. received welcome stimulus yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Walter C. Nichol, the regent, opened her home, "Rosedene," Rockland Avenue, for a tea for the reception of gifts for use in this humanitarian phase of the chapter's work. The splendid total of 160 pieces included beautifully-made woolens, dresses, shoes, socks and other garments for babies, together with nine blankets, a baby's mattress and an elderdown, all of which will be distributed by the chapter to the families of needy war veterans.

Mrs. Nichol received the many guests in the entrance hall which, together with the drawing-room and music room, was effectively arranged with masses of roses and yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. H. J. Davis, convener of the child welfare committee of the chapter, received the many gifts, assisted by Mrs. P. A. Tadmack. Miss Marian Pitts was in charge of the silver collection.

The pleasure of the many guests was enhanced by the delightful musical programme arranged by Mrs. Nichol. Mrs. E. Baird contributed "Lullaby" (Cyril Scott) and "Mighty Lak a Rose" (Ethelbert Nevin). Mrs. B. H. Tyrwhitt Drake sang three charming cradle songs, one by the Russian composer, Balakirev, and Brahms' "Wiegand" and "Little Brother's Cradle Song" by Jan Brockes. Mrs. Nichol's songs included "The Tears of St. Joseph," by Someren-Godfrey; "The Bird," by Phyllis James and an old French song arranged by Arnold Bax, with music by Phyllis Fergus; "The Owl and the Pussycat" (Ingram); "The Long Ago" (Phyllis Fergus); while in the second group were "Little Boy," the music for which was composed by Paul Bliss; "What the Chimney Sang" (Eugene Field); "My Shadow" (Eugene Field) and "Visitors." Tea was served in the dining-room, the table being centred with a bowl of yellow chrysanthemums.

HAYDN CONCERT MUCH ENJOYED

Musical Art Society Observes Bi-centenary of Great Composer

By G. J. D.

A delightful evening with the genial music in a Haydn bi-centenary programme, such was the occasion yesterday when the Victoria Musical Art Society, in the third of its season's series of concerts gave an entire programme of Joseph Haydn's compositions. This comprised a string quartette, a sonata, the "Military" symphony, a bass recitative and solo, and a duet.

The programme began with two movements from Quartette Op. 83, No. 8, allegro moderato, allegretto, in which was witnessed the debut of four keen players, who in the accomplished and on an exceedingly creditable performance. There is excellent material in this group, and it is hoped the ensemble will be maintained, and with greater fluency and less tempo on a string quartette playing. The players, Mary Philip, first violin; Gilbert Macgregor, second violin; Captain Darling, viola; and Reginald Cooper, received a flattering reception and was compelled to repeat the allegretto movement.

Sidney Chivarrá's pleasingly round bass voice served him well in the well-remembered recitative "Le! Where the Pious Harvest War'd," and the air "Behold, Along the Dewy Grass," from "Autumn" out of Haydn's idyllic oratorio, "The Four Seasons," a beautiful picture of a year's rural life, and composed when Haydn was verging on three-score years and ten. Mr. Chivarrá was recalled and responded with the bass solo "Rolling and Foaming Billows," from the "Creation," with admirable effect.

The memorized duet, "Ye Gay and Painted Pair," from "Autumn," perhaps the most interesting part of the "Seasons," was charmingly sung by Isabel Crawford and Frank Tupman. They, too, were recalled to the platform and graciously repeated the last stanza. This exquisite duet is an excellent example of the style in use in Haydn's day, and although the "Father of the Sonata" left no great operative works, the duet shows that he well understood the use of the human voice in the bel canto of the classical school. Mrs. Rita McNeill ably accompanied the duetists, as also did Mrs. Clifford Wain in the numbers by Mr. Chivarrá.

The concluding Haydn composition was the "Military" in G Major, written during Haydn's three years' visit to London and included in the famous "Twelve Grand Symphonies," composed for Saloman, the Haymarket manager and known as the "Saloman Series." This was performed by the Victoria Little Symphony Orchestra of twenty players, under its founder and conductor, Francis Gratian, with flexibility, spirit, precision and color, and sustained throughout its military character from which the symphony derives its name. The allegretto march-like movement, was a capital performance, and the presto, the finale, was, as it ought to be, played in merry vein. Mr. Gratian and his forces received prolonged applause at its conclusion.

The Musical Art Society may well be thanked in this including in its concert series the bi-centenary of Haydn whose bi-centenary is this year being commemorated throughout the world. According to an announcement by the society's president, Mrs. W. A. Jameson, further Haydn music will be heard in another concert during the month.

YOUR BABY and Mine
By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

HELP, DON'T HINDER, NORMAL DEVELOPMENT

The scientific study of the diet of children has resulted in some standardized procedures. Certain ways of feeding, certain months in which to introduce orange juice, cod liver oil, cereals, vegetables, egg yolk, and to wean the baby have become very much a matter of course. No one questions their desirability because that has been thoroughly tested.

WHEN TO WEAN

Authorities agree that the ninth month is the proper time for weaning the baby from the breast. After this time—sometimes many months before—the maternal supply of nourishment begins to deteriorate. The child who is breast fed much beyond this period invariably, to the practical eye, shows progressive symptoms of under-nourishment. As this type of mother often feeds the baby from the family table, the child gets much nourishment in that way and the inadequacies of the breast simply go unneeded.

"EVIL EYE" IN EDMONTON CASE

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Nov. 3.—The "evil eye" may still have a place in fiction, but it cannot be tolerated as a medium for malicious mischief in the otherwise healthy life of a community. This is editorial comment on a court case info which "witchcraft" entered. "That belief in 'black magic' existed among certain classes of Europeans was no surprise, but to discover that this belief had been passed on to their children born in this country and had secured a hold sufficient to make it a real factor in disturbing community life and working injustice on individuals was, as His Honor termed it, "shocking."

"Fresh from the Gardens"

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

"No, I have not seen her for over a month. By-the-by, Miss Horne is going with me to Biarritz. You remember Miss Horne?"

"Yes, quite well."

"She has to come back in time for the election. You know her father has to stand for West Edinburgh after Easter. Well, I must go. Goodbye. I have forgotten your name, but please remember me to your aunt."

She held out a cordial hand, but Lily barely touched it with her fingers. She felt desperate. Another moment she must have betrayed herself. "I may as well tell you, though I don't know why I should, that I am going to be married to Miss Horne's brother in the summer after I return," Miss Ingles looked back to say. "I know you will wish me luck. Do join the mission, for if Miss Horne and I both leave, they will need the places filled."

She nodded and smiled, and went quickly down the steps to the waiting carriage. Lily stood still. She saw her wave her hand with that perfect friendliness which disarmed all bitterness, and the next moment the brougham was out of sight. Lily drew her latch-key from her pocket, and entering the house, closed the door. The old-fashioned was at the window in the kitchen, with its curious tinkling bell, gave forth four strokes as she put down the book she had fetched from the library before she had gone to the pier. She walked into the kitchen, to which she had free access, stirred up the fire, and quickly got the kettle to boil.

Then she made herself a cup of tea. She was standing by the kitchen table drinking it, when she heard her landlady's key in the door.

They got on very well together, though there were some things about her young lodger which Miss Fiddes could not understand, and several of which she did not approve. She thought her very idle for one thing, and though she was charmed with her readiness to do her full share of the housework, she wished she did not spend so many hours gazing out of the window and mooning about the sands. Her life seemed so genuinely purposeless that she was often sorry for her, and showed her all the kindness she could. But Lily did not invite her confidence—nay, she kept her at arm's length.

Miss Fiddes rather admired her for her reticence, and asked no questions. The rent was regularly paid, and when the husband came she was always glad and relieved, though his visits were often short, seldom extending beyond an hour or two's call. But Miss Fiddes suspected nothing. She was by nature guileless, and had very little experience of the seamy side of life.

"Now, my dear, that is not the way to enjoy a meal," she said reprovingly as she beheld the cup and the teapot on the kitchen table. I have lived a long time alone, but I have never descended to that. I have always respected myself, and waited upon myself, so to speak."

"I only wanted a drink," answered Lily. "I'm going up to town."

"Are you? It's very tiring there today. The wind gets one at the corners so."

"There's been a lady here to see you—Miss Ingles."

Miss Fiddes flushed quickly. "Oh, I am so sorry I have missed her. When did she call? Were you in, and did you ask her to come in and rest a little and offer her a cup of tea?"

"No, I met her at the gate, and she was in a hurry. She asked me to tell you she had been ill, and that she was leaving for the south of France to-morrow for the benefit of her health."

"Has she really? She is the daughter of Lord Kilmarin, Mrs. Gilbert, who is a second cousin of mine, only you see I am too poor to be recognized by his wife, who is a very proud woman. He used to come and see me some times. It was very sweet of her to call."

"She told me another thing," continued Lily steadily. "She's going to be married. She has come back—at least, in the summer—to Mr. Horne. Do you know him?"

No, though the name is quite well known and respected in Edinburgh. Perhaps I shall call to-morrow at Moray Place if I can summon up my courage. Ah, my dear, you don't know what it is to be very poor and very purposeless that she was often sorry for her, and showed her all the kindness she could. But Lily did not in-well in his youth. We were like brother and sister."

Lily could not repress a smile, though the remark did not call for expression or comment. It was born of the irony of the inward thought. Perhaps, after all, she would do well to "Oh, yes, I had been in," said the little woman in tones of genuine regret. "Things do happen so very contrary."

"Yes, they do," answered Lily quickly. "That's life."

She took up her gloves and began to draw them on.

"Could you tell me the name of a good lawyer in Edinburgh, Miss Fiddes?" she asked, keeping her eyes on the fastening of her gloves.

Miss Fiddes seemed surprised at the question.

"I used to know several. Let me see. The man who drew up the codicil to my dear father's will was a Mr. Haliburton. Just wait a moment, and I'll get the address from my bureau."

Lily nodded, and when she was left, walked to the dresser and took a look at herself in the mirror while she adjusted her veil. She had a high color, and her eyes had a curious deep sparkle in them.

Her pulses were beating with pleasurable excitement of coming action. The time of waiting was at an end. Here it is—Mr. Andrew Haliburton, S.E.C. 35 York Place. I suppose you know where York Place is?"

"Oh, yes, I could walk through it blindfolded. Thank you very much."

"I hope it is nothing to worry you. It is so hard for women to have to do with lawyers, so lying and confusing. Lord Kilmarin was very kind to me at the time of my father's death, and secured as much for me as he could. I shall always gratefully remember that, for, of course, he need not, though he was my second cousin. Lots of people find it convenient to forget such relationships. But hadn't you better wait until Mr. Gilbert comes back—to-morrow, isn't it?"

"Yes, to-morrow night, unless he's detained. I'll just find this out before he comes back. Thank you very much."

"And shall you be late?"

"I don't know; it depends. But you won't worry about me, Miss Fiddes. I can look after myself."

CHAPTER XXII

Jemima Bain had been out for her usual afternoon stroll in Princess Street when Jemima didn't, knowing concerning the latest fashions as displayed in the shop windows was not new knowledge. Also she knew a great deal about the ladies who wore them in the fashionable promenade. Jemima could tell you more about the private affairs of Edinburgh society, especially the parts that were better left unspoken, than any representative of the society press. Here was an unpaid post, but she worked none the less hard on that account, and her compendium of information was amazing if not accurate. She had a wonderful gift of intuition, of being able to piece two and two together, and her assumption was so cool that people accepted her information as true.

"Ah, Jemima!" had passed into a proverb in the circles that had the privilege of her personal acquaintance. She had taken great pains to discover what had become of Lily Morrison. She had even laid traps to discover the cabman who had driven her away, but in spite of the simplicity of the whole arrangement and the nearness of Lily's whereabouts, she had been completely baffled.

It was the open simplicity of everything that had been the roadway's best security. Nobody had thought of looking for her in the main road between Portobello and Joppa. So far as the Morrisons were concerned, however, there had been no search. Lily had deliberately turned her back on them. Very well, then, why move a finger to bring her back? Pride and dignity as well as common sense forbade it. Such was Morrison's reasoning, and though his heart was inwardly sore, he showed no sign. Jean did not dare to mention her sister's name in the house. It had made a great difference, however, to her life. A pall seemed to fall over it, and the gloom of the long evenings was unrelieved. In her heart, Jean went often to her aunt's house, and the good good of the family trouble had been the establishment of a better friendship between them. Of late Jean had avoided Jemima Bain, because they never met without that worthy advancing some new theory concerning Lily's disappearance.

Uncle Wiggily And Bab's Pussy

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Once upon a time Little Bab, the rainbow girl who talked so fast that she sounded like the babbling of a brook, after which she was named, ran over to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. I mean Bab ran over, not the brook, though, of course, brooks run. "Hello, Bab," said the rabbit gentleman looking at her red cheeks, blue eyes and golden hair. These colored her like part of the rainbow in a soap bubble, after which Bab, the little chum, was named.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily," answered Bab, talking like Baby Bunt just for fun. "Where's Bab?" asked Mr. Longears, for, though Bab and Bab were not twins, they were so often playing together that when you saw one you nearly always saw the other.

"I don't know where Bab is," said Little Bab, "but I have brought you something else to play with, Uncle Wiggily."

"What is it?" asked the rabbit gentleman, smiling with his pink nose.

"It's my new pussy cat," Bab answered. "I just got her and she's very cute and when she purrs it sounds like the tea kettle humming. But now I am going to find Bub so I will let you take my little pussy but you must be good to her."

"It's my new pussy"

"Oh, I'll be very good," promised Uncle Wiggily. "I love pussy cats. You may safely leave yours with me, Bab."

"That's good," laughed Little Bab. Then she ran away to find her chum, Little Bub, leaving her pussy with Mr. Longears.

"Looking after pussy cats is fun," said Uncle Wiggily who was sitting out on his porch in the easy chair. "There will be nothing for me to do to take care of Bab's pussy so I can sit here and think up a story to tell the children. Now you curl up and go to sleep, pussy," said Uncle Wiggily. "Don't fuss around, for I must think."

The pussy was chasing her tail and trying to catch a fly in her paws and looking at a shadow on the porch, so she didn't even mew at the rabbit gentleman.

"Did you hear, pussy," said the rabbit. "You must keep quiet so I may think of a story for the children."

"Meow, mew, mew!" said the pussy still chasing her tail. She paid no attention to the bunny uncle.

"I guess it's because I don't know her name," thought Uncle Wiggily. "I should have asked Bab what to call her pussy, so she will mind. But perhaps I can guess her name." Then he began to call: "Here, Tabby, here, Kitten, here, Fluff, here, Tick-tick! Behave yourself. Meow! Stop it. Scritch!"

But to none of these names did the pussy answer. She just kept on chasing her tail, playing with a piece of paper and jumping over a shadow. So Uncle Wiggily said:

"I guess I didn't guess the right name. I'll try again."

He called the pussy the names of Kathleen, Kamelinda, Bacon and Eggs, Fried Ham, Pancakes, Buttercup, Ice Cream Cone and Lollypop.

But to none of these did Bab's little answer. She just kept on chasing her tail, arching up her back and chewing the piece of paper. So Uncle Wiggily said:

"I'll just call her 'Pussy' for that's a nice name. Come here, pussy! But Bab's little cat just kept on playing with the piece of paper and Mr. Longears said: 'I guess she just wants to stay near me for company. She'll amuse herself.'"

Then Uncle Wiggily began to feel sleepy. He closed his eyes and nodded his head and his long ears began to flop flop. And then, all of a sudden, he felt something funny and there was Bab's pussy up on his shoulder playing with his wiggling ears. She caught them and long ears took one in her mouth but she didn't bite hard.

"Hi there, Pussy, what are you doing?" said the rabbit.

"I'll tell you, I want to play with your ears!" asked Bab's little cat, opening wide her eyes.

"Why, no, I didn't said the rabbit. 'You mustn't wiggle your ears.'"

"Then you mustn't wiggle your ears," said the pussy. "I always jump after anything that moves. So if you don't want me to play with them, don't wiggle your long ears."

"All right," said the bunny gentleman with a laugh. "I won't. But since you can talk why don't you tell me your name instead of making me try to guess it. What's your name?"

"Just Pussy," was the answer, and the little cat laughed and so did Mr. Longears and so did Bab when she came back. So everybody was happy.

And if the electric fan stop throwing water on the umbrella when it wants to go to the movies, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Bab's dog.

Says Cigarettes To Be Cheaper

Canadian Press
Toronto, Nov. 3.—The Toronto Globe in a story from its Ottawa correspondent to-day said a reduction of 33 per cent in the excise tax on cigarettes would be made effective during the present session of Parliament.

Canadian manufacturers, the newspaper said, would benefit substantially by the move and would probably reduce retail prices by increasing the number of cigarettes in each package.

The present excise tax of 66 per 1,000 cigarettes brings the government substantial revenue.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

CABBAGE IS A REAL BARGAIN FOOD

By SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

If you are looking for bargain foods you will find an excellent one in cabbage. Always low in price, it is rich in mineral constituents and a good source of vitamins. It is good raw or cooked and with a little care the pleasing one head can be made to do duty for several meals.

So many cooks ruin cabbage in the cooking, not only making it unpopular but losing much of its good value as well, that perhaps a few suggestions regarding its preparation and serving may be helpful.

Always cook cabbage or any of its family in an uncovered pan. This prevents the forming of its gas value, gives off the unpleasant odor so objectionable to many persons. Cooking it uncovered and for a short length of time also keeps it from becoming strong flavored and unpalatable. Overcooking of cabbage causes loss of much food value and tends to make the vegetable difficult for some people to digest. Another point to keep in mind is to put cabbage on to cook in actively boiling water to more than cover and then use as much of the water as possible when serving it. Cabbage is a heavy loser of minerals during the cooking process and the water naturally contains these constituents.

The cooking portion of its gas value, which is lost, is appreciably shortened if cabbage is finely shredded before cooking.

However, one of the best ways to use cabbage is uncooked. None of its vitamins and mineral salts need be sacrificed, and the raw vegetable is refreshingly crisp.

When cabbage is used raw it should be very finely shredded and very crisp. Try combining it with apples, nuts, celery, shredded green peppers, grated carrots or shredded beets—one or all of them. It is good with grapefruit and shredded pineapple, too. Shredded cabbage alone served with a French dressing to which celery seed has been added makes a desirable dinner salad with game or pork. Then there is the ever popular sour cream dressing. The woman in the country with cabbage and sour cream always at hand need never fail to give her family their essential "protective" food.

A cut head of cabbage can be kept in perfect condition for several days if wrapped in wax paper and stored in the ice box. This makes it possible for one or two days to elapse between the serving of cabbage in one of its numerous ways.

Here's how to use a head of cabbage to the best advantage.

Cut the fresh head of cabbage on the night fish is served for dinner. You can have a salad of shredded cabbage and carrots, green peppers and celery mixed with French dressing. Or simply use old-fashioned coleslaw, which is always liked with fish.

For the next day's luncheon, combine any left-over fish with well crisped cabbage for a salad.

The next night, peppers stuffed with cabbage and finely chopped meat provide an appetizing and nourishing dish.

The last quarter of the head is used in a vegetable soup with carrots, onions and tomatoes. The vegetable can be finely shredded and served in the broth, making a thick full-meal soup, or the whole can be strained and a clear soup served.

Luncheon: Cheese fondue, creamed cabbage, quince tapoca pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner: Fried rabbit, gravy, mashed potatoes, baked squash, molded vegetable salad, open-top apple pie, milk, coffee.

At a meeting of Strawberry Vale Women's Institute held on Tuesday afternoon the members planned to give a silver tea on Thursday, November 10, at Colquhoun Hall, corner of Roy and Wilkinson Roads, from 3 until 5 o'clock. The object in giving the tea is to create a fund so that the institute can present a flag to the recently organized company of Girl Guides. The Guides will be present in uniform on this occasion to help in serving refreshments, and will also provide some interesting features of the entertainment.

It was decided to hold a special meeting at an early date to meet a committee to discuss the proposed formation of a troop of Sea Scouts, with headquarters at Strawberry Vale Hall. Members will be notified and are urgently requested to attend this meeting as matters of the utmost moment must be decided.

The annual gift of ninety-eight pounds of flour was donated to the Solarium, Mrs. Humphries made an appeal for clothing to be sent to Saskatchewan. The previous bundle which was sent was gratefully received and the need is very pressing. Anyone having clothes or material of any kind for this purpose is asked to communicate with Mrs. J. Harper, president, or Mrs. Foster, Wellington Road, or any member of the institute.

The next card party will take place on Monday, November 7, at 8 o'clock, at Colquhoun Hall. Now that the hall is complete with ceiling and the walls lined, it is very attractive and comfortable and a pleasant time is assured for all who attend. Refreshments will be served and old-time dancing enjoyed.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Jealousy and Morbid Sentimentality Cause
Grown Daughters to Wreck Father's Middle-
Aged Marriage—Girl Who Is Losing Friend
By Insisting on Paying Own Way

DEAR MISS DIX—An old maid, fifty years old, married a widower of sixty who has two daughters, married and living in another county. The wife is a splendid woman who does everything to make her husband comfortable and to help him and they would be very happy together except that his daughters have made the man feel that he did wrong in marrying again and putting somebody in their mother's place. They flood him with letters filled with "Mother" and how they miss her, about her sufferings, her death, her grave, how they can never get over her death and so on, and to please them he buys costly floral designs with the word "WIFE" in large letters to place on her grave. He never gives his wife a flower or present of any kind. Everything goes to the cemetery. This makes my friend very unhappy and she says if this goes on she is going back to her old home and leave him to his daughters and his first wife's memories. What do you think she should do?

Answer—I think she should first have a plain talk with her husband and try to make him see what a folly his daughters have driven him into committing and then she should tell him frankly that she doesn't intend to play second fiddle to a grave and that he can take his choice between a live wife and a dead one.

If he is going to continue to spend all his money on funeral designs instead of courage bouquets, and if he is going to make a cult of the memory of his first wife, then I think Mrs. No. 2 would be foolish to waste any more time on him and she will be wise to return to her own old life, which was certainly less aggravating than her new one is.

Of course, the man in this case is a poor, weak, chicken-pecked sap or else he would tell his interfering daughters to mind their own business and let him live his life in peace with a good woman who has taken pity on his loneliness and is probably making him a lot better wife than his first wife did, for there are no such husband-spoilers as old maids who get married.

Also, he would tell his daughters not to talk rot about putting another woman in their mother's place. Nobody can ever possibly take another person's place because no two people have the same individuality and nobody loves two people alike or for the same qualities. Nor can we ever duplicate our emotions in life. Certainly no man of sixty can fall in love romantically as he did at twenty. No man of sixty has the illusions about women that he had at twenty.

Nor does any woman of fifty have the palpitations and thrills and dreams about a man of sixty that she did about her first sweetheart. But middle-aged people can have a deep and abiding affection for each other that is a very beautiful and comforting thing to both.

The real villains in this case are the daughters whose jealousy, mixed with a sort of morbid sentimentality, is making them wreck their father's life. They, somehow, feel that it is romantic and high-sounding for their father to go on mourning their mother and being miserable about her and keeping her grave decked out in flowers. They don't want him to be happy. They don't want him to forget. And so they keep stirring him up all the time about their mother's death and that is a mean and selfish thing to do.

When children interfere with their middle-aged parents' marriage and prevent them from taking suitable mates, as they often do, they do a very wrong and foolish thing and one that very often becomes the boomerang that annihilates themselves.

For when they keep father and mother from marrying and maintaining their own homes, they automatically acquire father and mother as permanent fixtures in their own homes, and that seldom makes for the peace and harmony of the establishment. For sons-in-law and daughters-in-law are not keen about having their husbands' and wives' parents live with them.

A widower is a particularly helpless creature. He is like an animal that has been house-broken and who does not know how to take care of himself when he is thrown out again into the wild. He is accustomed to the comforts of his own home, to being the head of the house, to having a wife take care of him and to feminine society, and he is miserable without these whether he tries to live in his children's homes or in clubs or hotels.

So if children really loved their father they should be glad and thankful that some nice woman of his own age had taken him in charge and made a home for him. Many a stepfather and mother saves a man's and woman's own home.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been keeping company with a wonderful girl for the last six months. She is beautiful, does not pet, drink or smoke and is a wonderful little cook. But here is the hitch. She will not accept any gift from me, though I would like to get her everything. If we go in for even an ice cream or a soda she insists on paying her own cheque. The other day we got on a street car together and she paid her fare, and two of my friends who saw it razzed me about being a cheap skate and asked me if I needed a nickel. This made me mad and I asked the girl why she wanted to put me in such a humiliating position. She considered that rude, and since then has had nothing to do with me and I am heart-broken. What can I do?

Answer—Give her a little time and she will get over her mad, particularly as she will find out that every other decent-looking young chap takes the same position on that subject that you do. For every man who is in love with a woman wants to do things for her. He wants to give her things. He wants to feel that he is taking care of her, making life a little easier and pleasanter for her.

Why, that is what men work for. That is what they make money for, to spend on women. It is to give women good times and pretty clothes and jewels and luxuries that men toil. There is precious little that their money buys for themselves.

And a girl knows little of masculine psychology who doesn't let a man spend something on her, for the more a man does for a woman, the more he loves her. No girl could do anything that would be more calculated to slow down a man's interest in her and cool him off than for her to pay her own way when she went with him, unless it was understood beforehand that they were going on a Dutch-treat plan.

Also, men are far more conventional than women. It is expected that the man will pay the bills when he takes a girl out and when he doesn't do this it puts him in the attitude of being a male gold-digger or else a cheap skate, and both positions are humiliating and make him ridiculous in the eyes of other men.

It is fine for a girl to be independent and not to be a gold-digger, but she has to have enough discretion to know when to open her pocketbook and when to keep it shut.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband has been a respectable, businesslike and dignified man all of his life until now, when at the age of fifty he has completely changed. He neglects the good business he has built up. He is taking all kinds of music lessons and is the laughing stock of the neighborhood, singing at the top of his voice. He has a regular beauty parlor of his own and spends hours trying to beautify himself and grow hair on his bald head and takes all kinds of reducing tablets trying to get a boyish figure. He tries to chum with boys and girls of sixteen and brags that he is in younger condition than any boy of twenty or thirty. He is always quarrelling with his own children and making presents to young girls. My nerves are shattered and I am too ashamed to meet my friends. Is there any cure for him?

Answer—Oh, yes. A certain cure. Time. He is just going through the age of folly that afflicts a great many other men at his time of life, and if you will just be patient he will soon get over it. Go and talk to your doctor about it and he will explain it all to you.

It is just the last flare-up of youth, a last call to the dining car, but while it lasts many men do tragic things, such as imagining they are too young for their wives and that they have fallen in love with flappers, and while they are under this delusion they often break up their homes and divorce their wives and marry girls young enough to be their granddaughters and repent it ever afterward.

Summon what sense of humor you can to understanding the situation and be thankful that it is no worse.

Qualicum-bred White Leghorn
Lays 301 Eggs During Trials

Westwood Poultry Farm of Duncan won the Vancouver Island egg-laying contest conducted by the Dominion Experimental Station at Sidney, it was announced yesterday. The contest concluded on October 21 after being in progress for fifty-one weeks. The winning pen consisted of White Leghorns, the total production being 2,447 eggs, which earned 2,729 points.

The highest producing individual bird was a White Leghorn owned by C. O. Golding of Qualicum Beach, which laid 301 eggs. The eggs averaged unusually large and earned 352.9 points to head the classification by points.

In average eggs per bird first place went to a pen of Light Sussex from Royal Oak, which averaged 225.9 eggs each. The average of all the birds entered in the contest was 189.1, the total number of eggs laid being 58,553.

There were thirty pens in the contest, thirteen being White Leghorns, six pens of Rhode Island Red and five barred Plymouth Rocks were the next in order of popularity.

STOLEN CARS FOUND

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, Nov. 3.—Victoria police have recovered a touring car, owned by A. Spacott of East Wellington, which was stolen from the Western Fuel Company's wharf on Halloween night. Another car missing on Halloween, belonging to Reuben Wall, was found on Tuesday in an alley here.

Hollywood Extra Comes Into Own

BY ROBERT GRANDON

DOROTHY WILSON

a wardrobe mistress

Hollywood, Nov. 2.—Met Dorothy Wilson to-day . . . and this clever young woman . . . who found opportunity yanking her into the studio . . . is just another example of the whims of Hollywood and the odd fortunes of the screen.

Dorothy was a script girl at RKO Radio. She played bits now and then and typed manuscripts and all that. . . . Someone was needed to appear in "The Age of Consent," and an inspired studio official gave her a test. . . . She made it and now is working on "Men of America."

A reputation of the story of Alice White, who quit scripts to star. . . . But instead of being a single story, it's quite the thing for extras of Hollywood to get their chance now. . . . Kate Lawson was the wardrobe mistress of Radio for a long time. Now she has been cast in a character role in "Little Orphan Annie" in support of Mabel Green.

Susan Fleming had bits in "Ladies of the Jury" and "A Dangerous Affair." Now she's listed as a regular with a good part in "The Lesson About Women." Arnold Korff is another. You've seen him in background often enough, but now he has a role with his name on the script.

You might watch out for Lorena Layton, Jacqueline Allen, Monica Bannister, Patricia Greene, Muriel Gordon, Geraine Greer and Alice Janz. . . . And add to this the names of Helen Vinson, Sheila Terry, Glenda Farrell, Ruthelma Stevens and Gloria Shea.

Cut this and keep it for reference. . . . For these are the extras of yesterday . . . and the stars of tomorrow.

Would you like to know some interesting facts about John Barrymore? If so, write Robert Grandon, in care of this paper, requesting the leaflet on John Barrymore. Enclose a stamped, address envelope.

B.C. MINERAL VALUE TOLD

J. D. Galloway Addresses
Revellers on Resources in Provincial Mines

The value of British Columbia's great mineral resources was indicated to members of the Revellers' Club by John D. Galloway, provincial mineralogist, in an address given at their dinner meeting in the Cairo Coffee Shop yesterday evening.

Mr. Galloway stressed the necessity for advertising this wealth in order to derive the greatest returns from it. Mining and milling could be carried on in British Columbia at a figure lower than in any other part of Canada, he said. In support of this statement, he pointed to the operating cost of the Britannia mine.

British Columbia's non-metallic minerals were of the greatest value, Mr. Galloway said. He referred to coal,

Governor to Attend Y.M.C.A. Guest Tea

His Honor the Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. J. W. Fygham Johnson will attend the annual guest tea to be held by the Women's Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. at the institution on Thursday afternoon, November 10. Among the tables arranged will be that at which the Women's Canadian Club will be hostesses, the First United Women's Association, Metropolitan W.A. P.E.O. Sisterhood, Kiwanis, Rotary, Gyro and Junior Chamber of Commerce tables, the table in charge of Mrs. A. J. Watson, and the "Y" Auxiliary table which is open to any guest unaffiliated with any of the other organizations taking tables.

showing its vast uses and noting it was still the greatest of all heat-producing substances.

He outlined the work being done in the Cariboo by placer miners.

The speaker was thanked by J. Gann, who expressed the hope Mr. Galloway would speak again before the club at some future date.

IMPERIAL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

To the Editor:—The success or failure of the Imperial Economic Conference will depend very much upon world conditions and world prices, over which it will have no control, and yet, notwithstanding that fact, world prices is the keystone of the pact, from which there can be no escape, whether for weal or woe, for all concerned. The preference given to the Canadian producer under the terms of the Ottawa conference may be compared to a door, with two hinges upon which the hinges in world price and the other is sufficient supply, and the doorkeeper is John Bull, with his hands upon the knob and his eyes upon the world market.

Furthermore, we find the preference may be suspended any time Canadian producers are unable, or unwilling, to meet world prices or supply quantities sufficient for the British market. There will doubtless be a much larger volume of business transacted than was formerly possible, but only experience will demonstrate the cash value, if any, to Canadian producers.

The Canadian farmer will be able to supply Great Britain with her needs of wheat and have some to spare, while their world competitors, whom they have displaced in the British market, will have to find a market for their surplus grain elsewhere, and that market will, in all probability, govern world prices of grain instead of Liverpool. And such being the case, it is difficult to see what advantages the British preference will give to the Canadian producers over his world-wide competitors.

Under the terms of this agreement, the produce of every description will be sold at world prices in the British market. Even the lines of exportable produce, sold in the home market, will not be exempt from this disaster.

And while the producer will have to sell his produce at world prices, he will not be permitted to purchase his supplies in the same category, but must meekly submit to Canadian prices. The advantages of this agreement are all with the consumer, and the producers get the cold shoulder at every turn of the road.

APPEAL FOR HUNGRY TOTS

Red Cross Seeks Funds to Buy Needed Food For Children of Peace Block

Unless some outside agency can step in to the breach and aid them, little children of the Peace River block stand to suffer hardships through lack of proper food this winter which may permanently affect them physically, it has been learned by the local offices of the Canadian Red Cross now busy on a campaign to raise funds to meet such contingencies.

The Red Cross is looked to as the most logical agency to combat this problem. Hopeful of public support for such a necessary task they have opened a subscription list at the Victoria headquarters, 317 Belmont House, and are voicing an earnest appeal for those who can to assist them financially.

The drought a year ago left the people of the Peace block with little or no feed for cattle many of which had to be slaughtered. This summer the cut-worm destroyed a great deal of the garden produce so that both milk and fresh vegetables are sadly deficient.

This condition, while hard on adults, is truly serious for the children. Without the necessary elements furnished by milk and vegetables, it is almost inevitable that injury will be done them from which they will suffer all their lives, as it is recognized six months of ill feeding in childhood does vastly more harm than three or four times that period in after life.

It is of general concern that steps should be taken to obviate this danger. It is possible through the Red Cross nurses, who are also the school nurses in that part of the province, to ensure that all children who are living on a deficient diet are supplied with the necessary extras. Even if the contemplated relief measures are put into operation they are unlikely to be sufficiently elastic to be adapted to individual needs of this nature. The work will have to be undertaken by some voluntary organization.

In the circumstances it would appear that the Red Cross is the logical agency to do what is necessary. It works in the closest co-operation with the government. Its nurses are on the spot and in daily and most intimate contact with the people. Its programme of service to the sick and suffering precisely qualifies it for such an activity, and indeed it has already taken some steps in this direction, and is prepared to go farther as soon as the necessary funds are available.

The responsibility really rests on everyone. If it is accepted the children will be saved. If it is refused they will suffer. The Red Cross is able to purchase necessities at the lowest prices and to distribute them where they are most needed and will do the most good.

PEARCE TO TELL OF SPECTROSCOPE

Astronomer Will Deliver Lecture This Evening and Show Stellar Spectra

This evening at 8 o'clock the Astronomical Society will meet in Unity Centre Hall, 658 Fort Street, when a popular lecture on "Revelations of the Spectroscope" will be given by Dr. J. A. Pearce, Ph.D., F.R.S.C.

The lecturer will tell of the contributions of the spectroscope to our knowledge of the stars. An historical introduction will deal with the fundamental discoveries of Newton, Fraunhofer, Kirchhoff, Secchi and Huggins. Many examples of stellar spectra will be shown illustrating how these spectra reveal the physical nature of the nebulae Wolf-Rayet and new stars, Mira type variable stars and comets.

Spectrograms will also be shown which tell the story of the rotation of the sun and planets, the meteoric composition of Saturn's rings and the motions of the earth, the sun and the stars through space and the binary and multiple nature of certain star systems. The use of the spectroscope for determining the actual magnitude of the stars and the solar parallax will also be explained.

The lecture, which is open to the public, will be profusely illustrated with lantern slides.

from Fort St. James, according to advices received at headquarters here. Coroner W. R. Stone of Vanderhoof was notified of the discovery. Although the body has not been identified, a prospector named H. Derby left Fort St. James last January and has not been accounted for to date.

LOGGER'S DEATH WAS ACCIDENTAL

Special to The Times

Courtenay, Nov. 3.—A verdict of accidental death was returned on Monday by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Uno Carlson, who was killed on Saturday at the logging operations of the Bloedel, Stewart and Welsh Lumber Company.

A. L. Page, hook-tender, stated that Carlson was assisting in handling logs. A pair of logs were being brought in. One struck a snag. Carlson made a dive for another snag and in so doing got directly under a sapling. The top of the snag fell and drove the sapling against Carlson's head.

The injured man was taken to the Campbell River Hospital, but passed away as the speedboat drew into the Campbell River wharf.

Carlson was twenty-three years of age and was married less than a year ago. His widow resides in Vancouver.

REPORT MURDER OF MISSIONARY

Associated Press

Hankow, China, Nov. 3.—Belle Rev. Bert Nelson, United States missionary, held by bandits in Hupeh province for two years, had been slain, was strengthened to-day by further Chinese reports.

These reports, from Sinyang, quoted Communist officers captured from groups affiliated with the one holding Nelson as saying Mr. Nelson had been shot because he could not keep up with the fleeing forces.

The bandits were fleeing with the Communist armies into northern Hupeh before a Nationalist Government drive to scatter them.

The officers shot a number of Chinese were also shot for the same reason. The bodies were abandoned, they said, leading to the belief the body of Mr. Nelson may never be found.

BANKER TRIAL NEARING END

Ralph Walters Extradition Fight Expected to Be Concluded Here To-day

Ralph Walters, Seattle and Auburn, Wash., banker, was on the stand again to-day on the resumption of the extradition trial before Judge Lampman, in which his return from Canada to the United States to face charges of grand larceny is being sought.

Mr. Walters, under examination at the hands of Stuart Henderson, defense counsel, testified that he could not have been in Seattle on December 6, 1929, the day on which he is charged with selling the Bankers' Holding Corporation stock to Mr. and Mrs. Merton Moses, because he had left Seattle for Portland, Ore., at 7 o'clock that morning and had not returned to the hotel the following day. He brought into court his trip diary, showing dates of the trip.

Ewert H. Windt of Portland, Ore., who had been a close friend of Mr. Walters in Seattle three years ago, took the stand to corroborate Mr. Walters' evidence. He testified that he had been with Mr. Walters early that morning by motor to Portland to attend the hotel convention in session there. He contested the date by looking up newspaper files in the Portland library, where he found the Portland Journal on December 6, 1929, carried a story of the hotel convention then in session in that city.

Clifford E. Hoof, Seattle lawyer, was called by Mr. Henderson. He presented depositions from the president and cashier of the Tacoma National Bank to the effect that the 1,120 shares of American bank stock sold by the bank, and which have been figuring in the case, were in the name of the Bankers' Holding Corporation and not in the name of Mr. Walters.

It is expected the case will be completed late to-day.

DO NOT FORGET VETERANS A SK

Poppy Day Will Aid Ex-Servicemen in Hospitals; Get No "Smokes" Now

Saturday will be Poppy Day, when the Remembrance Day Committee will conduct the annual sale of poppies made by disabled veterans in the Red Cross Workshop. Colonel H. T. Goodland, chairman of the committee, has secured the assistance of a large force of sellers, sufficient to cover every section of the city. A band, organized by James Miller, will parade the streets, and every citizen is asked to assist in the business section during the greater part of the day, playing well-known war tunes and reviving memories of the past.

The committee is appealing for the fullest measure of public support so that there may be no curtailment of necessary help for needy veterans. This year, for the first time since the poppy fund was instituted in 1922, the practice of supplying veteran patients in local hospitals with smokes was discontinued owing to lack of funds. Each and every citizen is asked to assist in the best of their ability in raising a fund that will be sufficient to prove to the veterans that Victoria does not forget.

KLING Gives Solid Comfort

If your plates drop or slip when you eat, talk or laugh, you suffer needlessly. Just sprinkle a little KLING on them. This new improved powder forms a "cushion" which holds them in place, and holds plates so snug, it cannot rock or slide. Your mouth is comfortable. Your plate sets as well as your own teeth do. Eating is again a joy. Don't suffer another day. A large package of KLING costs only 35c at drug stores.

Declares Truth Will Justify Japan Stand

Japanese Consul Sets Out Side of His Country on Manchuria Question

Says Trouble Largely Due to Chinese Anti-foreign Policy Against Nippon

When the truth regarding the Manchurian situation is established the world will treat sympathetically the present stand of Japan, T. Haruya, Japanese Consul at Vancouver, told members of the Rotary Club in an address on the Manchurian problem at their luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

"It is my most earnest desire that you be not too hasty in forming definite conclusions on the present situation which is taking place in the Far East," he said. "For when it becomes clear that the determined stand Japan is taking—in defiance, as it seems, of the League of Nations—is not at variance with your ideals, then I am sure that the 'difficult period' through which we have been passing will naturally attract the same sympathy which was given us in the Russo-Japanese War."

Since the publication of the Lytton Report a month ago the general tone of public opinion and newspaper editorials in Canada has become decidedly more favorable and genuinely sympathetic towards the policy of our nation. It is pleasing for me to observe this note of understanding and good feeling," he said.

SEVERELY INDICTED

Japan has been very severely indicted for its apparent aggressive policy. It was a great surprise to him to note the credence placed in propaganda inferring Japan was bent on aggrandizement not only in China and Asia but throughout the whole world.

NEVER PART OF CHINA

Turning to history, the speaker said Manchuria was never a part of China, but a part of the world.

Powell River was the first British Columbia town to secure telephone communication with the outside world by means of a radiotelephone link, this being replaced later by a submarine cable. In the spring of 1931 Ocean Falls obtained long-distance service by means of radio and was followed in January last by Prince Rupert.

The radiotelephone service to Prince George will be available from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

In the course of experiments prior to the opening of the service, various citizens of Prince George had the opportunity of talking to southern B.C. points.

ASKS LIBERTY TO ALL WIFE

C. Bland Denies Vagrancy Charge But Court Refuses Him Freedom

Charles Bland, three-year-old daughter was the subject of litigation in the Court of Appeal at Vancouver yesterday, was arrested by police early this morning on a charge of vagrancy.

Before Judge George Jay in the City Police Court this morning he pleaded not guilty and was remanded to Saturday.

Bland asked the court to allow him liberty on his own recognizance until the hearing.

"My wife expects another baby and may have to go to hospital at any time. One of my girls is sick with the flu and I should be home to look after her," he said.

The court denied the privilege when told by Chief Heatley that the accused was not looking after his family properly. The Blands have eight children.

The hearing in Court of Appeal in Vancouver yesterday regarding one of the Bland children was on an action to secure for the parents the right to appeal against an adoption order given by the custody of one of the daughters to Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Agnew. The parents wished the child put into a Catholic institution. The court reserved its decision.

INTERRED AT ROYAL OAK

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Evan Burnett, who passed away at his home on October 31. Many beautiful flowers covered the casket and floral racks at the chapel. Dr. Clean, officiated at the service.

during which the hymn "Nearer, My God, to Thee" was sung. A solo by Mrs. Morton, "No Night There," was rendered. The following acted as pallbearers: J. Jacklin, W. Kaye, J. J. Andrews, H. Nicolle, J. D. McEachin and J. Lismore. Interment was in Royal Oak Burial Park.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING OF THE Victoria Liberal Association

Registered under the Societies Act for the Province of B.C.

The Annual General Meeting of the Victoria Liberal Association will be held at the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium on Friday, November 4, at 8 o'clock p.m. The business coming before the meeting will be the election of officers for the ensuing year.

An address will be delivered by the Hon. T. D. Pattullo, which will be followed by a musical programme.

The Annual Meeting is open to all members of the Association. In accordance with the constitution, admission will be by 1932 membership cards, which are obtainable from all officers, members of the executive and special committee appointed to arrange details of the annual meeting.

a rich country, but also an example to the rest of China.

He hoped Canada and the British Empire would take the lead in establishing trade with that country.

The general attitude of the world was swinging more and more to the Japanese outlook, although they might appear at variance with the outlook of the League of Nations, he concluded as he voiced an appeal for a steadier saner outlook on the question.

Premier Talmie moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, expressing the hope that conditions in Manchuria and the Orient might settle down to a point where trade could be resumed with Canada.

Aldermen James Adam seconded the vote of thanks.

EXTENDS RANGE OF RADIOPHONE

Prince George Linked With Victoria To-day By Campbell River Radio

Using a 300-mile radiotelephone link, The Northwest Telephone Company to-day opened telephone service between Victoria and Prince George, in central British Columbia.

The radio link, which extends from Prince George to the company's radio station at Campbell River, on Vancouver Island, taps the huge network of telephone lines that spreads across the continent. Not only can Prince George talk to Canadian and American cities, but it can reach Europe and other parts of the world. Over 30,000 telephones are within reach of Prince George now. This is more than 90 per cent of all the telephones on earth.

Powell River was the first British Columbia town to secure telephone communication with the outside world by means of a radiotelephone link, this being replaced later by a submarine cable. In the spring of 1931 Ocean Falls obtained long-distance service by means of radio and was followed in January last by Prince Rupert.

DEBATE TEAM IS SELECTED

J. V. Fisher and A. H. J. Corby Will Represent Victoria Against British Universities

Three Teams Compete in Trials; Democracy to Form Topic of Debate Nov. 24

J. V. Fisher of the provincial Department of Finance and A. H. Corby, a student at the Victoria High School, were selected yesterday evening to represent Victoria in the debate with the British Universities team in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium on Thursday, November 24. The local pair, who gained the coveted positions after spirited trials, will take the negative of the subject: "Resolved that democracy has been proved in the last ten years to be a failure."

The British team is already in eastern Canada and its appearances are stirring up a great deal of interest. Since the two Britishers are the pick of the debating team of the leading Old Country universities, they can be relied on to render a fine account of themselves as well as to make the debate an argument against democracy will set many people thinking.

The tour is under the auspices of the National Federation of Canadian University Students and the local arrangements are being handled by the Service Clubs' Council, of which Atwell D. King is chairman.

Debaters in the trials yesterday evening were selected from the civil service, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Victoria High School. The various teams dealt with the pros and cons of democracy and the two debaters who were selected probably gained from the material of the unsuccessful candidates valuable tips which they will use to advantage against the Britishers.

It is understood that the judges yesterday evening, Judge P. S. Lampman, Professor E. S. Parr and B. C. Nicholas, will be asked to officiate on November 24.

TRAINING SCHOOL STILL GROWING

Classes Expand at Memorial Hall; Interesting Programme To-night

Increased enrolment in several classes were recorded at the Leadership Training School meeting at Memorial Hall yesterday evening. Rev. A. G. E. Munson presided at the opening session and Rev. H. P. S. Luttrell addressed the school on a devotional topic.

Announcement was made that G. A. Hebbden, superintendent of the City Temple Sunday School would preside to-night and Rev. M. S. Richardson would conduct the devotional exercises.

Miss M. Fountain will give a brief review of two recent religious books. Much interest is being taken in the Young People's course conducted by Rev. W. J. Minto Swan. Over fifty young people representing fourteen city and district churches are in attendance in this group.

LAST RITES HELD

The funeral of Henry Appleby took place yesterday afternoon, at the City Temple Sunday School, before a large attendance of friends. Two hymns were sung. "The Sands of Time Are Sinking" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Many floral tributes covered the casket and hearse. The remains were laid to rest in Royal Oak Burial Park.

The following acted as pallbearers: P. J. Barker, L. Flint, J. S. Richardson, H. H. Jewkes, E. Holgate and S. Perkins.

Birthday Greetings Are Extended To-day To—

R. F. DALZIEL
R. K. DALZIEL
R. K. MARTIN
R. J. RUCKER

Twin brothers, native sons of Victoria, who have made good in their home town, are receiving congratulations from a host of business friends and former school chums to-day. They are R. F. Dalziel and R. K. Dalziel. Bob lives at 474 Garbally Road, and Ed. at 7435 Queen's Avenue.

With another brother, J. W. Dalziel, 654 Garbally Road, they are carrying on the business of the Dalziel Box Co., which their father, the late Henry Dalziel and the son, J. W. Dalziel, started.

The enterprising brothers have successfully followed the lead set them by their father, and the business has expanded steadily since it was formed.

The twins went through Spring Ridge Boys' Central and High Schools, and are now appropriately working together in the compact family business.

Though there are many of his friends in Victoria who can remember R. K. "Tim" Martin as a boy, and will wish him the best of luck on his birthday to-day, it is several years now since he first had the privilege of voting.

"Tim," the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Martin, had much of his preliminary education in Victoria schools, and was one of the outstanding pupils at the University School before he took up his studies at McGill University, from which he graduated in 1930. "Tim" first regular job after becoming a degree man was on the editorial staff of The Victoria Daily Times, for which he had previously written tennis during his holidays. Tennis is Tim's favorite outdoor summer sport, and he still recalls the time in Vancouver, years ago, when he took a few games of tennis with the young Elsworth Vines, who is now number one ranking player in the world. After being with The Times a few months, "Tim" was called to Montreal to the editorial staff of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada.

H. J. Rucker, native son of British Columbia, born at Elgin in 1900, has a birthday to-day. He came to Victoria as a lad of six and has resided here ever since. His home is at 1630 Burton Avenue, where he has a rose garden that is the envy of all expert growers.

Family Budgets Are Lower Now

Drop For Group of Five From $26.92 in 1920 to $16.34 To-day

Cost of living for a family of five in Canada which in July, 1920, was placed at $26.92, is now down to $16.34, which is just two dollars higher than it was when the Great War started, according to figures on family budgets compiled by the Dominion Department of Labor.

The report on the subject gives the weekly cost of a list of twenty-nine staple foods for an average family of five in terms of the average retail prices in sixty-nine cities as $6.98, a gradual decline being reported every month. To-day's prices of food are the lowest on record since September, 1914, but lower fuel and rent costs then kept the total budget at that time to two dollars lower than it is at the present time.

For food which a family of five now secures for $6.98 they paid $16.92 in June, 1920, which was the peak month of the record. The price of food alone at that time was more than the total budget of a family these days.

A seasonal fall in the price of potatoes and lower prices for beef, mutton, milk and bread have brought the family budget down recently. It is now a little over $4 below what it was at the corresponding time a year ago.

Meralomas Score Single-point Victory Over Calgary Altomahs

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Eddie Gerard Returns as Mentor of Montreal Maroons
Has Enjoyed Great Career Both as Manager and Player
Jack Adams, Detroit Pilot, Another Great Hockey Figure

WHEN Montreal Maroons open up this year's campaign in the National Hockey League Eddie Gerard will be back at the helm. Gerard was one of the five greatest defence men in the history of the game. He and Sprague Cleghorn formed a stone-wall partnership for the Ottawa Senators on the 1921 team, one of the greatest hockey aggregations that ever lined up on skates. Gerard started his hockey career when in the public school. He graduated to the New Edinburgh, played for Cliffside and was a smart amateur in the days of seven-man hockey, playing at rover. Between times he starred as a paddler, was a fair baseball player, a great rugby half-back and a fair cricketer.

For years Gerard was the mainstay of the Ottawa football team's backfield, a smart, broken field runner, whose specialty was the return kick. Gerard could boot with telling accuracy while on the run. When he first turned pro in hockey he played on the wing, but gradually found himself on the defence where he was noted as the hardest and most accurate body checker of his day. Gerard had the art of body checking down to a science.

He was a spectacular rusher with a flair for accurate passing. He usually supplied Denney, Broadbent or Barrach with accurate passes. In those days no account was kept of assists, but Gerard had an average in that respect that would compare with the best of the present-day forwards. His fitness forced him out of the game when he was in his prime and naturally he turned to coaching. After a year as assistant at Ottawa he took command of the Maroons. In two years the big red-shirted machine won the Stanley Cup and the world championship. After several years he resigned, stayed out of hockey a season then resumed coaching with the New York Americans where his recent successes are well-known.

Gerard neither drinks nor smokes. He is an exponent of the simple life. He numbers his friends among the thousands, and is a well-liked personality who has done much to elevate hockey to its present position. One thing Gerard demands among his players is harmony. Gerard is always a great ice general. He relies on his players implicitly. All he wants is loyalty, obedience to the easy rules laid down for the guidance and their whole-hearted effort.

Jack Adams, who guides the destinies of the Detroit Red Wings, is another outstanding figure in hockey. He hails from Fort William. He played amateur hockey there and pro hockey in Toronto. He then decided to go west. He was a snappy forward with the Vancouver club, leading the Coast League in goal scoring in 1922. He was a fine shot, a neat stick handler and could take a terrific pounding in close to get his shot away. After playing several seasons in the west he returned east again to star with the Toronto St. Pats. In 1927 Frank Ahearn casting about for rugged reserve material brought Adams from St. Pats. Adams proved a useful factor in the pennant march of the Ottawa club. The next season he was selected to lead Detroit, and has been with them ever since. Last year he put them into the playoffs.

Adams, like Gerard, has never taken a drink or smoked in his life. This despite the fact that he was a hotel proprietor in Vancouver for a number of years. He is one of the happiest chaps associated with hockey in the N.H.L. and his happy-go-lucky manner has earned him the nickname of "Jolly".

Adams is a good mixer and a keen hockey student. Like many a manager he is a bit tough on officials. This year he is taking up a number of new recruits from the American Association and is planning on turning loose a speedy team. He is a popular figure in Detroit where he has carried out much effective work despite numerous obstacles.

Abe Kaplan Wins Bout at Portland
Portland, Nov. 3.—Abe Kaplan, New York, defeated Pat Kelly, Boston, two falls out of three, in the featured match on yesterday evening's wrestling card here. Kaplan weighed 216 and Kelly 208.

The first fall went to Kaplan in twenty-two minutes of a winglock and arm bar. Kelly won the second fall in ten minutes with a flying tackle. Kaplan took the deciding fall in five minutes when he dodged Kelly's flying tackle, then pounced on him as Kelly struck the mat.

Sailor Franz, 172, San Diego, lost to Bob Miller, 164, Chicago, in the semi-final. Miller won two straight falls with body slams.

Barney Oldfield Will Be Referee
Oakland, Cal., Nov. 3.—Barney Oldfield, famed figure of another automobile racing day, was named yesterday to referee the 100-mile national championship race at the Oakland speedway, November 19.

Coast Grid Clamps Take Slim Lead In Canadian Play-off

British Columbia Champions Turn Back Alberta Title-holders 6 to 5 in First of Two-game Series; Will Carry One-point Advantage Into Second Game Saturday Afternoon; Hutchinson Scores Try for Meralomas and Niblo Kicks Extra Point; Don Stewart Injured

Vancouver, Nov. 3.—Playing under the floodlights in rain and on a muddy field here yesterday evening, Vancouver Meralomas, British Columbia Canadian rugby champions, squeezed out a 6-to-5 victory over the Alberta champions, Calgary Altomahs, in the first of the two-game series in the Canadian rugby play-offs. Meralomas by virtue of their win to-night carry a one-point lead into the second game on Saturday afternoon.

HENRY WOODS IN KNOCKOUT

Yakima Lightweight Puts Bad News Johnson Away on Seattle Card

Seattle, Nov. 3.—On a boxing card that saw very tight and in three rounds or less, Henry Woods, whitewashed lightweight of Yakima, Wash., was awarded a technical knockout over Bad News Johnson, San Francisco, in the second round of the scheduled six-round main event here yesterday evening. Woods scored 134 and Johnson 123.

The boxing programme was one of the shortest ever seen in this city, the six scraps being run-off in sixty-eight minutes. Woods warmed all over Johnson and plastered him with lefts and rights to the head and body with terrific blows.

Sammy Santos, Seattle junior welterweight, was given a technical knockout in the third of a six-round bout over Jack Garrison, San Francisco.

For the Normal team, the third of Fred Goldstein's Sammy crashed Garrison to the canvas with a hard left in the third round.

Bobby Gray, San Jose featherweight, knocked Jack Kavanaugh, San Francisco, in the second round, and Joe Calder, Seattle Filipino featherweight, won a technical knockout over Pat Hicks, San Francisco, in the third after scoring four knockdowns.

NORMAL SCHOOL HOOP WINNERS
Students Defeat First United Adanacs 34 to 26 in Keen Battle

Playing a fine brand of basketball, Normal School men's basketball team defeated the First United Adanacs 34 to 26 yesterday evening in the church gymnasium.

It was a spirited and well contested game from start to finish, both teams displaying skill in combination and shooting. Rutledge opened the scoring with two beautiful field goals from near centre floor, putting the students in the lead. However, Adanacs came right back with two baskets, and a foul shot from Coates and MacMurichie to put them out in front.

At this stage play speeded up to a fast pace, each team scoring basket for basket. The rest interval found the Normal team on the long end of an 18 to 14 score.

With resumption of play, Normal School increased its lead by timely field goals from Gale and McKinley, and from then on were never in danger of being overtaken.

For the Normal team Rutledge and Pritchard led the scorers with ten and nine points respectively. MacMurichie and Coates displayed fine shooting ability for the Adanacs.

The teams and individual scores follow:
Normal School—Rogers 1, Gale 4, Rutledge 10, McKinley 8, Pritchard 9 and Kirk 6.
Adanacs—MacMurichie 8, Coates 10, Nayamith, Elgins 2, Andrews 4, Anderson and Bernie 2.

Ken Williamson To Play With Calgary
Calgary, Nov. 3.—Calgary Tigers of the newly organized Western Canada Professional Hockey League, added a fourth player to its roster yesterday. The player is Ken Williamson, Regina star left winger.

Only twenty-three years of age, Williamson is a speedy skater. He broke into pro ranks with Victoria in the now defunct Pacific Coast League, later to the Tacoma. He was put out of the game by injuries last winter, but is now fully recovered.

The four players now signed up are: Roy Robertson, goalie; Johnny Hoots, defence; Bill Rutton, right winger; and Williamson.

Don Stewart, clever centre half of the Meraloma team, kicked off, Hall, Altomahs, receiving. Calgary was unable to make yards in two attempts and McKenzie booted a high one to Stewart, who broke loose and ran the kick back twenty-five yards. Hunt-of-the-Vancouver team threw a forward pass to Stewart, but the ball was slippery and he was unable to hold it. Meralomas were forced to kick, and Hides fumbled, Lawrence, Meralomas, coming in fast to recover the ball. The Vancouver boys were unable to make their necessary yardage, Stewart punted a high one to McKenzie, who ran through a broken field for a gain of fifteen yards. McKenzie kicked and Calgary's last down, but the pigskin went in touch. The Meraloma team were trying the forward pass, but handling a greasy ball spoiled several good attempts.

CALGARY SCORES
The play swung back and forth with neither team gaining any advantage. On a smart play, Ellis, Meralomas, put himself onside by getting behind Stewart on a kick and then ran up fast to gather in the pigskin and was away before the Altomahs knew what happened. Ellis eluded the secondary defence and crossed the Calgary line, but the referee decided that Ellis was not onside and called the play back. The ball was placed on Altomahs thirty-five-yard line with Calgary in possession. After two attempts to make the ten yards, McKenzie lifted a long high punt to Stewart, who caught it behind his own line, fumbled the ball and Hides, Altomahs, fell on it for the first try of the evening, making the score 5 to 0 for the Calgary boys. The touchdown was not converted, Meralomas breaking through to prevent a placement kick.

In the second quarter Meralomas came back strong, Stewart tossing a perfect forward pass to Hutchinson for a gain of thirty-five yards. The Vancouver team brought the ball into possession, but a drop kick Niblo making the attempt. The Altomahs broke through the Vancouver line, however, and blocked the kick. Calgary were forced to kick on their last down, Stewart receiving the Meralomas. On the next play Stewart was hurt and had to be carried off the field. He was playing a splendid game and was in almost every play. Ferris replaced him.

MCKENZIE INJURED
Wares of the Calgary team broke through on an end run for a gain of thirty-five yards. McKenzie, who was doing some beautiful kicking, was slightly injured and was replaced by Gray.

In the second half Wares broke loose again for a gain of twenty yards. On the next play Calgary fumbled and Meralomas recovered on their twenty-yard line. Ferris tossed a forward but Wares snared it and Calgary gained possession. Niblo received McKenzie's kick, passed quickly to Wilson, who gained thirty-five yards. The Altomahs' line was holding and Meralomas were unable to go over the line in three downs. Calgary elected to kick on their first down and McKenzie punted right to Ferris's hands who streaked through for a twenty-five-yard gain. The Vancouver boys, on some nice plunging by Oakenfull and Garvin, reached the Altomahs' one-yard line, and on the play Hutchinson went over for a touchdown. Niblo placed the ball between the uprights for the additional point, making the score 6 to 5.

MAKE STRONG BID
Both teams were putting up a splendid fight and in the fourth quarter the Altomahs made a strong bid to score. Meralomas tightened up and played away back and forth with neither team having any advantage. The game ended with Calgary attempting forward pass uncatchable while Meralomas were in possession on the Tigers' forty-yard line when the final whistle blew.

The line-ups follow:
Calgary Left Outside A. Lowe
Left Middle J. Thomson
Right Middle J. Holmes
Right Inside C. Potter
Right Outside C. Scott
Right Middle L. Ferguson
Right Middle J. Christie
Right Outside L. Olson
Flying Wing N. Hides
Quarterback S. Gittus

Adams Criticizes New Move Against Hockey Hold-outs

Owner of Boston Bruins Considers Club Quite Able to Look After Their Own Players; Not in Sympathy With Plan Giving President Calder Power to Suspend Men; Boston Bruins Whip Boston Cubs 4 to 0 in Exhibition; Frank Boucher Still Refuses to Sign With New York Rangers

Charles F. Adams, owner of Boston Bruins, has criticized the action of the National Hockey League governors last Monday at Toronto. They empowered President Frank Calder to suspend holdout players after their cases were reported to him, providing he decided they had been fairly treated.

Adams considers the present power of clubs ample to deal with such cases and while holding no sympathy with hold-out players he said the Boston club would prefer to act alone, rather than involve other clubs in the league in "what would appear to be a monopolistic policy."

Major league ability was too much for Boston Cubs of the Canadian-American League at Quebec and they took a 4 to 0 lead from Boston Bruins in a pre-season exhibition game.

Shifty Joe Lamb, playing centre on a relief line, teamed with Red Beattie for the first goal. George Owen, stalwart defenceman, scored the second-period goal with a characteristic solo rush. Dit Clapper and Frank Jerwa scored the last-period goals, Jerwa on Oliver's pass.

Montreal Canadiens left for Syracuse, where they meet the Stars of the International League in an exhibition game to-night. Frank MacFarlane, Melville, Sask. amateur who turned pro with Canadiens, may be farmed to Rochester.

Coch Cy Denneny's Ottawa Senators are concentrating on short-range sniping and snap-shooting.

BOUCHER STILL OUT
The long-range duel between Col. J. S. Hammond, boss of New York Rangers, and his star centre-foreman, Frankie Boucher, continued with Boucher still adamant in his attitude towards the terms offered him.

The Rangers' owner said Boucher had been offered a contract calling for salary reduction no greater than "deemed necessary under present conditions" and added that Boucher was not for sale nor would he be traded.

Toronto Maple Leafs wound up their practice for this week, lack of ice taken out for a wrestling show—leaving them idle until Friday when they visit London for an exhibition game with Tecumseh of the International League.

Boston, Nov. 3.—Having failed with fitness, Manager Art Ross has reverted to the old slam-bang ways as he drives his huffy Boston Bruins through their arduous pre-season training at Quebec.

He has replaced all of last year's lightweights with rugged stars of established reputations and has polished up the old sure-fire check, the power play with its bruising checking, while mulling out his campaign against the rest of the National ice circuit.

UNITED AND SAILORS WIN

Defeat Empress Hotel and Hearts in Midweek Soccer Matches

Saanich Goes Into League Lead With Tars in Second Berth

Scoring shut-out wins over their respective opponents, Saanich United and the Navy jumped into first and second berths in the Wednesday football league standings yesterday, the former blanking the Empress Hotel, 6 to 0, and the sailors handing the Hearts a 4 to 0 setback. The United have a half game lead over the blue-jackets who are in second place.

With added strength in their front line Saanich had little difficulty in overcoming the less experienced Empress squad at the Heywood Avenue grounds. Twenty minutes from the start Williams scored for Saanich from a corner. Art Chapman drove the next into the net about fifteen minutes later. Griffiths saved a smart header from J. Chapman who missed another good chance when his header hit the uprights shortly after. C. Chapman grazed the bar with a first timer before the half closed. The Hotel boys broke away on occasional rushes, but Rowe stopped all shots that filtered through to him.

ATTACKS FUTILE
Following the interval the Empress squad went on several attacks, but failed to beat Rowe in the Saanich net. Howard and Tommy Johnson and Ernie Chesworth tested him but he proved safe.

The Chapman brothers again featured in the scoring, Art breaking through for number three, to be followed shortly by Tommy Price who headed in a corner from J. Chapman. Chuck Chapman dribbled through and lifted the fifth tally into the net and shortly after closed the scoring with a rifle shot from close in. He was banished from the field just before the close of the game when Referee Alcock objected to a remark passed by him.

Alcock refereed and teams follow: Saanich United—Rowe, O'Connell, Wyatt, Stenier, Kelman, Love, J. Chapman, C. Chapman, A. Chapman, T. Price, and Williams.

Empress Hotel—Griffiths, Rawley, Geddes, Robertson, McLean, Reid, Tooby, Johnson, K. Johnson, Chesworth, Vance.

NAVY WINS
Four tallies in the first half gave the Navy an easy 4 to 0 victory over the Hearts at lower Beacon Hill. The tars played a superior brand of combination and were much stronger before the goal than their opponents. White and Hibbert, Navy backs, broke up most of the Hearts' rushes.

Sadler, Navy left wing, out in to drive a fast shot past the Hearts' goalie early in the opening half. "Chuck" McDonald beat the custodian a few minutes later on a pass from Wilson. Marr, centre, accounted for the third tally and Sadler added another to close the parade with a shot from the wing before the interval.

In the second canto the Hearts played a better game. Newell sent in a couple of good shots that made Caid well extend himself to save. Play was

Caddell's One-man Rally Gives C.P.S. Fine Hoop Victory

Smooth-working Forward Comes Through With Seven Points in Dying Moments to Defeat Fifth Regiment 37 to 34 in Senior "A" Men's Basketball Clash; Caddell Garner Eleven Points; Green Mill in Hard Victory Over First United; Standard Laundry Take Women's Game

With Jack Caddell, newly-acquired forward, playing the hero role, the C.P.S. basketball team pulled the biggest upset of the current season yesterday evening at the Victoria High School gym by taking the Fifth Regiment into camp 37 to 34 in the senior "A" men's division. Caddell scored eleven of the lumbermen's points and in the final stages of the game came through with a lone man rally that brought victory to his teammates.

In the Senior B men's fixture the Green Mill nooded out the First United squad 23 to 20 after a spirited battle. The women's fixture saw the Standard Laundry defeat the J.B.A.A. Whites 21 to 15.

A FAST GAME
In the feature game of the evening both teams battled on a more or less even footing for nearly the whole game. First one team would take the lead and then the other. Baskets came in quick succession and play swung from one end of the floor to the other in fast rushes. The lumbermen went into the lead when Skillings scored. Shepherd came right back and Skillings scored again twice from close under the basket to give his team a 30 to 28 lead. Play became fast, with the regulars calling on their big guns in an effort to stave off defeat. Martin and Shepherd rang the hoop and Patrick scored a foul to tie the game up. Only a few moments to go the Fifth went into the lead with Shepherd romping through and Martin converting another.

Then Caddell sprang into the lime-light. A foul and a basket off this young man's fingers put the C.P.S. in the lead. Patrick came through with a basket but Caddell came right back tied the score with a foul, converted another, then went right through the middle for a beautiful basket that ended the game.

Shepherd played a sterling game for the Fifth. Jack Mackenzie and Dayl Blevins were a tower of strength on the defence.

OBTAIN EARLY LEAD
A 15 to 10 lead in the first half, which they held throughout the whole game, spelled victory for the Green Mill. First United played good ball but had hard luck with their shots. Both teams kept up the fight throughout and the fans saw a good exhibition. Billy Hill, for the Green Mill, and Colin McKenna, and John Taylor for the First United were the outstanding men on the floor.

The women's game saw two very evenly matched teams battling for the honors. The laundry girls were a bit steeper than their opponents. Dot Rendle turned in a good score of eleven points to help her team to victory. Gert Taylor starred for the Bays with five points.

Tommy Macdoe refereed. The teams and individual scores follow:
C.P.S.—Butler, Riddle, Wright 1, Skillings 10, Harding, Bissell, McKenna, S. Davis, Caddell 11.
Fifth Regiment—Oudip 3, Patrick 9, Shepherd 8, Feden, Martin 7, Brown 2, Simpson.

J.B.A.A. Whites—L. Spark 4, M. Spark 3, G. Taylor 3, A. Lalande 2, E. Esler 2, M. Edwards, W. Ford, Standard Laundry—H. Scott 6, W. Varney 4, D. Rendle 7, N. Rendle, H. Sarigson 2, N. Scott 2.
First United—Thompson 2, Holdridge 6, Wallace, J. Taylor 4, McKenna 6, McKenna.

La Barba Gets Offer To Battle Chocolate
Honolulu, Nov. 3.—George Blake, manager of Fidel La Barba, retired world flyweight champion, said yesterday he had received a telegram from Jimmy Johnston offering a bout with Kid Chocolate, Cuban fighter, in Madison Square Garden, November 23, for the featherweight championship.

Blake said he replied asking that the date be made two weeks later. La Barba is under contract for a fight here November 10.

Frankie Battaglia Meets Young Terry
Chicago, Nov. 3.—Frankie Battaglia, winning Canadian contender for the world middleweight championship, has been signed to meet Young Terry, Indianapolis, in a ten-round bout at the Stadium here on November 11. The tussle will precede the headline go between Barney Ross, Chicago contender for the lightweight title, and Goldie Hess, over the ten-round route.

RUDDY PRACTICE
A full practice for the senior A and B teams of the Oak Bay Islanders will be held to-night at Oak Bay Park at 8 o'clock. All players are asked to turn out, as final teams for Saturday's league games will be chosen.

Peden and Audy Make Early Challenge In Chicago Race

Canadian Riders Move Into Front; Two Bad Crashes

Victoria Bike Star and Montreal Partner Tied With Letourner and Debaets for Lead in Six-day, Grind; Canadians Lead in Sprint Points; Series of Spills and Jams Witnessed; Georgetti Forced Out With Broken Collarbone and Stockholm Suffers Fractured Nose

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Alfred Letourner and Gerard Debaets, the "Red Devil" team, and Jules Audy, Montreal, and William "Torchy" Peden, Victoria, B.C., popular Canadian pair, were tied for first place in Chicago's twenty-eighth international six-day bicycle race in the Stadium to-day.

Spills and jams followed one another in rapid succession and after the night's racing was over Franco Georgetti, little Italian cyclist, was out of the race with a broken collarbone, and Carl Stockholm, Chicago, was forced out of the race with a broken nose.

Georgetti went through the air for thirty feet and tried to break the fall with his hand but landed on his face. Stockholm suffered his second crash in the spill in which Georgetti hurled over him, the first occurring when he, Jules Audy and Steve Wagner went down.

EARLY CHALLENGE

Peden, outstanding rider in six-day meets, is seeking his second straight victory, following his recent success in the Montreal grind, paired with Regie Fielding, Toronto. In the Canadian race Peden and his partner hung back until the final days of the race then stepped out to take the lead. The big "red-head" is apparently planning to make an early challenge in the Chicago race as yesterday evening he kept right up with the leaders and to-day was tied with Letourner and Debaets in laps but was leading in points with fifty-seven to their opponents' twenty-nine.

The Victoria rider paired with Audy to score one of his victories last season and the combination is recognized a hard one to beat.

The eighth-hour standing of the teams follows:

Teams	Miles	Laps	Points
Audy-Peden	173	8	57
Letourner-Debaets	173	9	29
McNamara-Moran	173	8	22
Wagner-Petri	173	7	20
J. Walthour-Ritter	173	7	20
Spencer-Dempsey	173	7	20

BILLIARDS

Division "C" teams held the spotlight in both the Victoria City Amateur English Billiard League and the Inter-service loop yesterday evening. In the former Pro Patria came through with a 5-4 to 5-7 victory over the Elks, while Veterans of France took the Garrison Semantics' men into camp 5-5 to 5-8. In the Inter-service division Britannia Post lost to Pro Patria No. 1, 4-7 to 3-3, while Pro Patria No. 2 downed the T.V.A. 4-9 to 4-7.

Maxie Rosenbloom Will Battle Lewis

San Francisco Nov. 3.—Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, and John Henry Lewis, Prescott, Arizona, negro, who holds the California state title, were matched to-day by Promoter Frank Schuler for a ten-round bout here November 18. It will be a non-title affair.

OFFICIAL LINE-UPS FOR INTERNATIONAL SOCCER

London, Nov. 3.—Teams were announced yesterday evening for the soccer match to be played November 9 at Manchester between the English and Scottish Leagues.

The players are:
English League—Goal, Hibbs, Birmingham. Backs, Goodall, Huddersfield Town, and Blenkinsop, Sheffield Wednesday. Halves, Strange, Sheffield Wednesday; Talbot, Aston Villa, and Campbell, Huddersfield Town. Forwards, Hulme, Arsenal; J. Smith, Portsmouth; Brown, Aston Villa; Johnson, Everton, and Houghton, Aston Villa.
Scottish League—Goal, Jackson, Partick Thistle. Backs, Crannell, Aldrieontans, and McGonagle, Celtic. Halves, Massie, Hearts; J. A. Johnston, Hearts; Geaton, Celtic. Forwards, Archibald, Rangers; Marshall, Rangers, and Dewar, Third Lanark; McPhail, Rangers, and Napier, Celtic.

In addition he won by knockouts or technical knockouts over Joey Kaufman, Lew Kirsch and Frankie Petrolle, Billy's brother, and outpointed Johnny Parr, Tommy Grogan, Herman Perlick, Cecil Payne, Phil Griffin and Lew Massey.

PETROLLE IN GREAT SHAPE

Duluth Veteran Gets Weight Down For Title Bout Tomorrow With Canzoneri

Near Capacity House Expected at New York; Both Are Old-timers in Ring

New York, Nov. 3.—Apparently little observers were a trifle too reverent with their fears that Billy Petrolle would have plenty of trouble getting down to the class limit for his fifteen-round light-weight title match against Tony Canzoneri in Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

The battle-hardened Duluth veteran, who weighed around 142 pounds when he started training for this, his first "shot" at any title, tipped the beam at 138½ pounds at the conclusion of his workout Tuesday. He has two full days, plus the usual drying out process, to shave off the pound and a half that stands between him and the class limit of 135 pounds.

NOT WEAKENED
His handlers are confident he can do that with ease and retain all his strength. Petrolle himself said last summer when the Canzoneri match first was discussed that he would have no trouble making the poundage in the winter time, although it would be a virtual impossibility in the summer.

Canzoneri, of course, has not weight worries at all. The champion is a "light" lightweight, almost never scaling above 133 pounds.

Freight indications are for a close-to-capacity house when the battlers enter the ring Friday night.

Canzoneri, of course, has been a prime favorite with New York crowds for years, and Petrolle has built up an immense following through his many spectacular triumphs here.

There is a striking similarity in the rivals' careers. Both are veterans who looked to be about "through" a few years ago and then came back better than ever to confound the critics in a series of brilliant performances that eclipsed anything either had accomplished before. Both not only look like fighting men but really are.

Petrolle started his comeback campaign, oddly enough, by outpointing Canzoneri in a ten-round bout in September, 1930. Since that time he holds a series of brilliant performances that eclipsed anything either had accomplished before. Both not only look like fighting men but really are.

King Tut, Billy Townsend and Eddie Ran; a technical knockout triumph over Bat Battalino and decision victories over Jimmy McLarnin, Lopez Tenorio and Battalino.

LAST FOUR TIMES
In this period he has been beaten only four times, losing decisions twice to McLarnin and once to Jack Kid Berg and suffering a one-round knockout at the hands of King Tut.

Since Canzoneri won the lightweight title by knocking out Al Singer in one round in November, 1930, the champion had been beaten only by Johnny Jadiek of Philadelphia, Jadiek gained two close decisions over Canzoneri in January and July of this year.

FIRST YEAR TAKE MATCH

Defeat Second Year Rugger 13 to 0 in Opening Game of High School Rugby

In the opening game of the Victoria High School Rugby League yesterday, Doug Wallis's first-year team defeated the second-year aggregation, 13 to 0. The first-year team showed marked superiority in heeling the ball and backfield play.

The first half opened with both teams working hard and play centred around mid-field until Syd Gaunt broke away to run thirty yards for a try, which he converted. Following a prolonged attack in front of the second year's posts, Andrews crashed over for a score. Gaunt failed with the kick.

Jack Fraser, second year three-quarter, was outstanding in this half with his deadly tackling that stopped many dangerous thrusts.

The second-year team forced play into the first-year territory with the start of the second half, but could not get over. Syd Gaunt intercepted a pass and with the aid of Andrews succeeded in scoring after the ball had been passed between these two players four times. Gaunt converted as the whistle sounded to give his team a 13 to 0 decision.

Harry Smith refereed.

The teams were:
First Year—Bycroft, McAdams, Cockburn, Wilkinson, Peacock, Tauty, Minnie, Shepherd, Gaunt, Noakes, Taylor, Andrews, Thorburn, Webster and Wallis.

Second Year—Parfitt, Fraser, Wheelton, Nip, Surges, Mabee, Ross, McHenry, Maulpierre, Jo, Croft, Cole, Gower, Moffat and Price.

W. & J. Wilson, J. Durrance, S. B. Terries, J. A. McIntosh, 400, Keighly 354, C. Edwards, 376, Total, 2,877.

W. & J. Wilson won three.

Kent's A. Kent 4-0, A. McKierahan 4-0, R. Hocking 3-1, H. Applegate 4-1, D. Lewis 4-0, L. Lillian K. Linton, outstanding swimmers of the Royal City, will come over for the meet.

Entries are also looked for from Crescent, Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club, West Vancouver and other organizations of the Terminal City.

RELAY FEATURE
The Vancouver Amateur men last year won the Tip Top relay cup in its first running and will probably send a strong squad to defend their laurels, which, although not definitely specified, virtually represents provincial relay honors over the 200 yards course.

Providing arrangements can be made for the race, a school relay should lend exceptional interest to the gala. The team events usually prove among the most spectacular in the annual school gala and should retain their place even in open company.

For the men's diving the F.N.A. rulings will be observed. These are the regulations used by the Olympic committee and call for a fairly high standard of performance. Certain concessions may be made for the women in their event if they are unable to round out a full list of dives.

The association is also planning a smart equestrian skill which should meet with the approval of the spectators.

In the near future the "V" will provide entry forms to the different clubs of the province and will proceed with more definite arrangements for the gala.

M'CREADY LOSES MATCH TO LEWIS

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—Earl McCready, man mountain from Amulet, Sask., had enough holds in his wrestling bag of tricks to match Ed "Strangler" Lewis, recognized in New York state as the world champion, for close to three-quarters of an hour here yesterday evening, but the ring craft of the bulky "Strangler" finally asserted itself and the Canadian, giving away a few pounds, was forced into defeat after a "bad" break.

McCready was wrestling strongly until he plunged from the ring after missing a flying tackle. A subsequent series of crushing headlocks and the former Canadian Olympian was pinned at forty-three minutes eleven seconds. The winner weighed 245, eight pounds more than McCready.

PROGRAMME FOR "V" TITLE GALA DRAFTED TO-DAY

Wide Variety of Events tentatively Listed for Local Association's British Columbia Championship Meet; Plan Gala for Latter Part of Month; Men's 100-yard Backstroke and Fancy Diving Titles to Be at Stake in Event; Vancouver and New Westminster Expected to Vie With Local Stars in Quest of Laurels

Plans were being made at the Y.M.C.A. to-day for the association's annual gala which will include at least two British Columbia championships and which will probably be staged toward the latter end of this month in the Crystal Garden. No definite date has yet been set owing to the fact the "Flying Y" squad is making every effort to co-operate with the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club which is negotiating with the Portland Multnomah team for an intercity meet here within the next fortnight. To avoid any conflict in dates the association men have left their meet open.

A tentative programme, offering a wide variety of events for swimmers and divers of British Columbia, has been lined up and is expected to draw considerable competition from Vancouver and New Westminster. The suggested list of events, subject to revision follows:

Fifty yards freestyle, girls under fourteen.

Fifty yards freestyle, boys under fourteen.

100 yards men's backstroke, British Columbia championship.

Fifty yards freestyle, girls under sixteen.

Fifty yards freestyle, boys under sixteen.

Outside Weakness Brings Fractional Declines in Wheat

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—Paced with weak cables and a very poor demand, wheat sagged lower on the Grain Exchange to-day and closing prices were off 1/2 cent from yesterday's finish. Export was estimated at less than 300,000 bushels. November was down 1/2 at 45 1/2, December and May each dropped 1/2 to 45 and 47 1/2 respectively, and July closed at 49 1/2 after its first appearance late in the season.

It was believed a further fall was prevented by the advent of buying in the December option by the strong interest that so effectively supported the market before the crash a week ago.

Weakness at Liverpool and Chicago

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG
(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—Wheat prices were practically pegged on the local market to-day at levels fractionally under last night's close, with the big interest absorbing all offerings in December and May. Outside of this there was no buying, and while New York reported a fairly good export business in Manitoba overnight, none of this business was reflected here, either in the futures or cash markets.

While Winnipeg prices declined 1/2 to 1/4, but Chicago and Minneapolis markets broke 1 1/2, offerings were fairly liberal by way of hedging sales, local liquidation and back spreading from Chicago. These offerings were all taken by one source.

In the cash market there was a very poor demand for the straight grades, but spreads were unchanged except No. 1 hard, which was off 1/4. There was some demand for durum, and spreads were 1/4 to 1/2 better, but offerings were quite light.

The stock market was lower. Country marketings of wheat in the west yesterday were 1,220,000 vs. 2,104,000 bushels a year ago. The Argentine weather is most unsettled with beneficial rains being received.

Winnipeg closed 1/2 to 1/4 lower.

Cash Grain: These markets held very steady, but there was nothing of feature going on. Seaboard reported a little business in barley, but no interest being shown in it. No business was reflected here. Offerings were not heavy, in fact quite light.

Oats closed unchanged to 1/4 lower, barley unchanged to 1/4 higher, and rye 1/4 higher to 1/4 lower; flax closed 1/4 to 1/2 lower.

Liverpool due 1/4 lower to unchanged on Winnipeg.

Aorangi Makes Fine Run From Australia

Canadian-Australasian Liner
Clips 15 Hours Off Schedule
With Arrival From Sydney

Treaty Preference Causes Expansion in Dried Fruit Trade With Canada

Fifteen hours ahead of schedule, the motor liner Aorangi reached quarantine at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Australia and New Zealand. The ship is expected along-side the Rithet docks about 4 o'clock this afternoon to disembark passengers, and discharge forty tons of freight and 300 bags of mail. The mail to be unloaded here is for the United States.

Capt. J. F. Spring-Brown brought the big motorship here from the South Seas. Fair weather prevailed most of the voyage and the ship made her best time between Auckland and Honolulu. The schedule of the Aorangi calls for her arrival here Friday.

The passenger list is light this trip, there being comparatively few in the first class accommodation. Travel at this season of the year is never heavy from Australia.

Stowed in the holds of the Aorangi are about 2,000 tons of general produce, including chilled meats; wool, hides, kauri gum, dried fruits and butter.

TRADE EXPANSION

As a direct result of preferential treatment conceded on importations into Canada under the Canadian-Australasian trade agreement of 1925, and additional preference under the agreement of 1931, exports of dried fruits from Australia to Canada has shown considerable expansion.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, shipments to Canada amounted to 14,500 tons as compared with 9,940 tons in the previous year. Australian production of dried fruits for the year 1931-32 is estimated at 27,500 long tons.

The assumption of the butter movement from New Zealand has not been sustained and future shipments will be governed by production in Canada.

The bulk of the Aorangi's cargo will be discharged at Vancouver, to which port the ship will shift after completing her run.

On her return trip to the South Seas the big motor liner will sail next Wednesday, carrying a fair cargo and passengers for Honolulu, Suva, Auckland and Sydney. The last outward ship in this service, the Niagara, carried a large passenger list, and it is reported the Aorangi will also be well filled for the homeward voyage.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves
Thousands who have itching, bleeding or protruding piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery "HEM-ROID," and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with success in over 600 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies of worry about an operation when MacFarlane's Vancouver Drug Stores and all good druggists invite you to try HEM-ROID tablets with guarantee of money refunded if you do not get your Pile misery. (Adv.)

SHIP FLOATED CUT ASUNDER

Freighter Nurtureton, Cut in Two When Wrecked, Rebuilt; Now on Coast

The British freighter Nurtureton, which is now at Vancouver to load wheat for United Kingdom and the continent, possesses the novel distinction of being, perhaps, the only ship afloat which has been in two widely different world ports at one and the same time.

Somewhat over a year ago she hit a reef off England and broke in two. Salvage crews completed the break, and one-half of the hull was taken to Rotterdam while the other half proceeded to London. After repairs were effected at these two points, the London half was towed to Rotterdam and the two parts were fastened together.

The ship is now on her first voyage since the operation. Capt. W. Hickman, her master, declared she is a better ship now than she was before. Fuel consumption is lower and she is a better sea boat.

MAIL PLANES FOR ALASKA

Three Six-passenger Airships at Vancouver To-day Bound North

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Nov. 3.—An route from Maryland to Fairbanks, Alaska, where they will be placed in air mail service, three six-passenger cabin planes were at the Sea Island airport yesterday after a flight from Seattle.

The machines are being delivered to Fairbanks by the northern concern recently purchased by Pan-American Airways, and are being flown north by W. J. Barrows, northern pilot; with Edmund Lowe and S. Grey. They left the factory at Hagerstown, Maryland, last Thursday.

The planes are completely equipped for northern flying, carrying emergency supplies, rifles, fishing tackle and skis, which will replace the wheels when winter comes. It is planned they will take off to-morrow for Prince George and proceed from there to Fairbanks via Hamilton and White Horse. The pilots expect to reach Alaska before the freeze-up.

Mr. Barrows, who is in charge of the party, is well known in Vancouver, for he was a frequent visitor here as a pilot for the Pacific International Airways. Barrows is with Pan-American Airways and will spend six weeks in Alaska getting the mail line operating before he returns to New York.

Don M. Parker, Pan-American Airways representative, was a passenger on the flight from Seattle.

Although neither Mr. Barrows nor Mr. Parker would say so, it is understood Pan-American is still considering plans for a service from Seattle to Alaska next summer, with calls at Vancouver.

Season's Total Grain Export Now Doubled

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Nov. 3.—During the last week, according to the weekly grain report of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange, 2,727,424 bushels of wheat were exported, bringing the season's total to 20,921,546 bushels. The total at this time last year was 10,156,962 bushels.

There are ships in port to load 2,571,324 bushels, while balance of November bookings are 9,085,733 bushels. December bookings to date have already reached 4,608,000 bushels of wheat. Elevator stocks are 11,843,130 bushels, railroads report 1,526,600 bushels en route west on lines in this province and 1,724,600 bushels on cars in terminal yards here.

THROUGH QUARANTINE FROM ITALY TO-DAY

Ss. California, Royal Mail Ship, Will Transfer Cargo For Outbound Empress of Russia

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Nov. 3.—The Ss. California, of the Libera Line, which reached William Head early this morning from Genoa, Italy, passing up to Vancouver at 1.50 o'clock. The vessel is commanded by Capt. A. Canepa. After discharging 400 tons of cargo at Vancouver the California will load 6,500 tons, principally wheat, flour and canned goods. A number of passengers will be carried by the ship from British Columbia to Europe for Christmas. The California is due to sail November 10, reaching Marseilles on December 18, Genoa on December 20 and Naples on Christmas Eve. The next vessel to arrive in the Libera service will be the Cellina, which is expected November 26.

SHIPS LOSE ON SUGAR FREIGHT

C.N. Vessels Carry But 38,000 Out of 86,500 Tons From West Indies

Out of 86,500 tons of sugar shipped to Canada from the West Indies during the first six months of the present year, only 38,000 tons were carried by Canadian National steamships. This figure, quoted in the October issue of the Canada-West Indies Magazine, supports the contention which has been advanced from time to time by Canadian business men that the Canadian National steamship service is not always utilized to the extent that it should be in the West Indies having regard to the fact that Canada has gone to the expense of providing the necessary ships. After pointing out that the figure quoted for sugar shipments by Canadian National ships is less than 50 per cent of the total, the magazine states: "It is well in considering these figures to bear in mind that control in the routing of sugar is in the hands of the shippers, statistics showing that about 90 per cent of such shipments are C.I.F. cost, insurance and freight, and approximately 10 per cent F.O.B."

"We hold no brief whatever for Canadian National steamships, who are no more inflexible than any other individual or group of individuals," the article goes on to say. "Speaking from personal experience and knowledge, we are convinced that the steamship company is loyally trying to live up to its obligations under the Canadian-West Indies trade agreement, and to give value for money, and so far as the Canadian Government is concerned we believe we are right in stating that every effort has been made at Ottawa to secure the patronage of Canadian shippers."

"We believe," it says, "if there were a greater appreciation of mutual obligations between the partners of this enterprise, there would be less cause for criticism and greater resultant benefit to all concerned."

The Canadian National Steamships maintain a fortnightly service between eastern Canadian ports and the British West Indies. The ships plying in this service are the Lady Nelson, Lady Drake, Lady Hawkins, Lady Rodney and Lady Somers.

EMMA IN TO-NIGHT

The Ss. Emma Alexander will reach here at 9 o'clock this evening with passengers and cargo from San Francisco. The ship will sail at midnight for Seattle. Ss. Admiral Watson got away from the Rithet docks at 9 o'clock this morning for the south-bound trip from Seattle.

BRINGS SUGAR CARGO

Bringing a cargo of raw sugar from the Fiji Islands, the freighter Walrus of the Canadian-Australasian Line is now en route from Suva for Vancouver. The Walrus's cargo is consigned to the B.C. Sugar Refinery. The vessel will load paper and other British Columbia cargo for the return voyage to New Zealand and Australia.

NORFOLK MARU SPOKEN

DOCK LEASED AT NEW YORK

All Grace Line Ships For The Pacific Coast Will Depart From Pier 95, North River

W. D. Vanderbilt, Pacific northwest manager of the Grace Line, has been advised by the New York office that the company has leased a berth at Pier 95, North River, foot of West 58th Street, Manhattan, from which all Grace steamships will sail from New York in the service to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Victoria and Seattle. However, only the four new sister ships now nearing completion, Santa Rosa, Santa Paula, Santa Lucia and Santa Elena, will arrive at this pier.

The ships now plying between New York and California, Santa Cecilia, Santa Elisa, Santa Teresa and Santa Ana, will continue, as at present, to arrive at Pier 33, Brooklyn, but they will depart from Pier 95, North River, beginning with the sailing of the Santa Elisa December 1. The Santa ships operated by the Grace Line to the west coast of South America will continue to sail from and arrive at Pier 33, Brooklyn, as usual.

SHIP OUTFITTING

The Santa Rosa, first of the four new $5,000,000 Grace liners, is now being outfitted at Pier 85, Brooklyn, and will move to Pier 95, North River, November 16. From there, on November 26, she will make her maiden voyage to Havana, Panama, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Mexico, San Francisco, Victoria, B.C., and Seattle, Wash. Her three sister ships will be in operation by April of next year, and will increase the Grace Line's passenger fleet to fifteen ships.

With the entry of the four new liners into service between New York and California weekly sailings will be maintained, and the route extended to include Victoria and Seattle.

With this extension, the Grace Line's route between eastern and western seaboard will be increased to 6,953 miles. The Grace service from New York to Valparaiso covers 6,268 miles. This means that two Grace liners leaving New York, one bound for Victoria, one for Valparaiso, will cover on their respective round trips 28,576 miles, which is equal to the distance around the world.
